YANKS SLASH MAIN SECTION OF WEST WALL

Reach Rear Area of Siegfried Line.

PARIS, Feb. 4 (AP). — The United States 1st army ripped a hole all the way thru the west wall southeast of Aachen and 29 miles from the Rhine today, bending back the south flank of the enemy's powerful Roer river defenses which block an allied drive to the Ruhr and Rhineland.

The north wing of four assaulting divisions swung east four and a half miles, knifing thru two villages—one of them 4 mile and a half from the vital Roer river dams beyond the Siegfried line, where the enemy has been opening gates, flooding the valley, and balking a push farther north.

Strike in Snow, Sleet.

A front dispatch said the doughboys struck in snow, sleet, and freezing rain, and overpowered the last system of German pillboxes at a point eight miles east of Monschau. They fought out into open country within a mile of a five-mile wide fir forest, one of the last barriers to the Cologne plain.

To the south the United States 3d army broke into the main Siegfried line system five and a half miles inside the reich and three and a half miles from the fortress of Prum, keeping up the pressure on a 40 mile front in what may be the forerunner of a big push from the west.

The 3d army seized at least three German villages southeast of St. Vith and pushing into the Schnee Eifel forest was outflanking Brandscheid, four and a half miles west of Prum and a key to the Siegfried line defenses on this sector of the front.

Pierce 12 Mile Section.

Heaviest fighting raged in western Germany, however, where the Germans were trying to salvage a deteriorating situation which might undermine their powerful Cologne plain first line of defense on the Roer.

Lt. Gen. Hodges' 1st army troops now were thru a 12 mile section of the double Siegfried line in the Monschau sector, were as deep as a dozen miles into the reich, and besides piercing the last fortified wall on the north flank were within three-quarters of a mile of duplicating that feat in the center of the push.

The 9th infantry division first captured Einruhr, six miles northeast of Monschau and two miles from the Roer dams, in a four mile drive along the upper Roer.

Just to the south another carried thru the last main fixed fortifications of the second belt of defenses. Here the town of Wollseifen, a mile and a half south of the dams, was seized.

Nazis Fight for Roads.

Wollseifen is just east of the second line of bunkers and pillboxes in an area where the enemy now must rely on temporary earthworks.

Meanwhile, the 9th's right wing was running into heavy fighting two miles to the southeast at Herhahn, two miles from the road junction of Gemund and they threw a counter-blow that was warded off.

Two miles farther south the 2d division drew up its assault lines a mile from a second road center—Schleiden—capturing the village of Ettelscheid, three-fourths of a mile from the last main belt of the Siegfried line of which Schleiden is a part.

The 1st division, seizing Hollerath, five miles southwest of the 2d division, struck some of the rockiest resistance as the Germans fought back at the crossroads and from fortified villages.

At the western loop of the Siegfried line some two miles farther south, the 82d airborne division broke thru the pillbox-studded west wall's first defense line south of Udenbreth, then swung around and

Reds 38 Miles from Berlin; Flank Kustrin

LONDON, Feb. 4 (AP).—Russian forces marching on Berlin moved northward today to outflank the Oder river bastion city of Kustrin and captured Barwalde, 14 miles northeast and 38 miles from the capital.

Farther south, another flanking movement apparently aimed at bypassing the second large Oder line fortress town, Frankfurt, was begun with the capture of Ziebingen, 13 miles to the southeast and 51 miles from Berlin.

On the road to Barwalde, troops of Marshal Zhukov's 1st White Russian army also took Neudamm, 10 miles northeast of Kustrin.

The regular nightly war bulletin broadcast from Moscow announced these advances toward Berlin, but said nothing of a push toward the German Baltic port of Stettin which the German high command reported had reached Pyritz, 22 miles to the southeast.

Seize 100 Villages.

Moving around Kustrin and Frankfurt, guardians of the last 40 miles to Berlin, Zhukov captured more than 100 towns and villages, the soviet bulletin said, adding that 1,500 prisoners had been taken in this sector.

Front line dispatches reaching London from Moscow said street fighting already was underway in Kustrin and that Frankfurt, 16 miles to the south, was in soviet artillery range. Great air battles also swirled over the Oder front.

At Barwalde, the Russians cut the railroad between Kustrin and Stettin, and at Neudamm the rail line from Kustrin to Soldin, nearest Russian approach to Stettin officially reported, was severed. At Ziebingen, the railroad from Frankfurt southeastward was cut.

Both Barwalde and Ziebingen are approximately four miles from the east bank of the Oder. There was no indication from Moscow that the Russians had crossed the river in either sector, despite German reports that attempts to force the river northwest of Kustrin had been repulsed.

Reds Reach Baltic.

One German war reporter said in a broadcast that the Russians had established several bridgeheads across the Oder, including one 10 miles deep. He did not give the locations of these bridgeheads, but indicated that one might be in Silesia, at Steinau, 34 miles northwest of besieged Breslau, where the Germans have acknowledged several penetrations by Marshal Konev's 1st Ukraine forces. Moscow was silent regarding the Silesian front.

An order of the day by Marshal Stalin announced earlier the capture of the East Prussian towns of Landsberg and Bartenstein, south of the capital, Koenigsberg, where Gen. Cherniakhovsky's 3d White Russian army is squeezing tighter its ring around the last trapped Nazi defenders.

The bulletin added that soviet troops had completely cleared the enemy from the Kurische Nehrung, the strip of land separating the Kurisches Haff [bay] from the Baltic sea which extends northward from Cranz, also captured today, to Memel.

The Russians also took more than 70 other towns, and, with the fall of Cranz, occupied an eight mile stretch of the Baltic coast, extending southwest to Alknicken. Of East Prussia's 14,283 square miles, the Germans now hold only approximately 800 square miles west and southwest of Koenigsberg.

U. S. TO TURN OVER MERCHANT SHIPS TO FRENCH GOVERNMENT

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4 (AP).—An undisclosed number of American merchant ships will be turned over to the French government for operation in the allied nations' shipping pool, the war shipping administration announced today.

The WSA also reported it had approved a request by the French government for allocation of cargo space on other vessels for importation of essential supplies into France.

The agency said the first French crews will be available within the next few weeks and additional vessels will be allocated to France from time to time. The ultimate number depends in part on the number of French crews available.

The shipping agency also announced it has been turning back to France requisitioned French ships which have been operated by American crews. In the future these vessels will be operated by French crews but will remain in the shipping pool.

23 AMERICANS KILLED IN PLANE CRASH IN ITALY

ROME, Feb. 4 (AP).—Twenty-three American army personnel, including three nurses were killed Friday when a transport plane crashed into a mountainside 60 miles north of Rome.

The only uninjured survivor was Lt. G. M. Baco, of New York City, who pushed the pilot to safety. An enlisted man also survived.

The plane, a twin engined C-47 of the United States 12th air force, was en route from Florence to Rome.

Baco said the plane was following a river because the weather was so bad when it suddenly went into a cloud. The plane brushed tree tops and then crashed and skidded 300 yards over the crest of a mountain, Baco added.

The pilot, whose leg was broken, blocked Baco's way out and Baco shoved him out thru the windshield. "I got the pilot by the collar and somehow dragged him 50 yards from the plane before I fell down," Baco said. "Flames quickly consumed the plane."

After fixing a tourniquet on the pilot's leg, Baco walked two miles down the mountain for aid.

Wallace Fight Is Showdown for Right and Left Wingers

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.—Developments today signalized the joinder of issues in what may be the greatest political battle of our times—the struggle over the socialization of industry in the United States. They foreshadow approaching storms in congress and the issues and party alignments of the 1946 congressional and 1948 Presidential elections.

The fight over the confirmation of the nomination of Former Vice President Wallace for secretary of commerce broadened into a general conflict between the New Dealers, Sidney Hillman's CIO political action committee, Earl Browder's Communists, and other left wingers on the one hand aiming at a government managed economy and the Republicans, conservative Democrats, and other right wingers on the other hand seeking to preserve private enterprise for profit.

Williams Provides Test.

These forces will be arrayed against each other when the appointment of Aubrey Williams to head the rural electrification administration is considered by the senate committee on agriculture Tuesday. Williams is in for a grilling at public hearings on his record as head of the national youth administration, which was liquidated as nonessential by congress a couple of years ago.

Williams will be assailed by the conservatives as a collectivist and as a "waster of government money," in the words of Sen. McKellar [D., Tenn.], president pro tem of the senate, who is leading the coalition of conservative Democrats and Republicans in this particular fight. The left wingers have rallied to Williams' defense. The indications are that there will be even more opposition to Williams in the senate than to Wallace who was saved from rejection last week by administration pledges to divorce the RFC and other lending agencies from the commerce department, so as to put them beyond reach of Wallace and finally by postponement of consideration of his appointment till March 1.

George Bill Up Again.

In the house also there is likely to be a showdown of the strength of the opposing forces on the Wallace nomination. The George bill separating the lending agencies from the commerce department, which was passed by the senate last week, is to be considered by the house banking committee Tuesday.

Rep. Rankin [D., Miss.], who is a crack parliamentary strategist and is one of the leaders of the conservative coalition, proposes that the George bill be held in the house commitee until the senate shall have acted on the Wallace nomination. Administration leaders concede that the Wallace nomination will be rejected if forced to a vote before the passage of the George bill. Senate Majority Leader Barkley [D., Ky.] said he will not ask a vote on the nomination until the George bill becomes a law.

Rankin stated that if the house committee should report the George bill and seek its passage before the senate votes on the Wallace nomination he will move to recommit the measure to the committee. The vote on that motion would furnish the showdown between the left wingers and the right wingers.

Bill a Storm Cellar.

In explaining his proposal, Rankin reflected the attitude of the conservatives who are girding for the battle with the radicals, already grooming Wallace for the Democratic nomination for President in 1948.

"There is a feeling," said Rankin, "that the George bill should remain in the committee until the senate votes on the Wallace nomination. Many members regard the George bill as a storm cellar contrived to enable certain senators to escape the righteous wrath of an outraged public opinion.

"If it is dangerous to turn the department of commerce with the RFC over to Mr. Wallace, it is just as dangerous to turn the department over to him without the RFC. There are all kinds of ramifications of powers over industry and business in the commerce department exclusive of the lending agencies."

YANKS TAKE PALACE, PART OF CITY; JAPS MAY DEFEND SOUTH SECTION

Manilans' Welcome Flusters Heroes of Campaign.

BY FRED HAMPSON.

WITH THE 37TH DIVISION IN MANILA, Feb. 4 (AP).—Manila's welcome took many and bewildering forms.

A great and beautiful city struggling thru a pre-birth to liberty poured out to us—grimy, sweaty, dirty, weary, and utterly unheroic in appearance—such a measure of thanks and acclaim as can only come after long and miserable bondage.

Old women wept and old men wept. A gaunt, toothless woman in a ragged gown grabbed the hand of an abashed regimental colonel and kissed it..

"Victory!" said the flustered colonel.

"The Americans are back!" she quavered. "God bless you, sir, God bless you, sir. God bless the Americans! God bless all the Americans!"

End of Jap Dream.

A brigadier general in our group turned and said:

"There is an answer to Japan's dream of empire! After three years of the orient for the orientals these orientals kiss our hands and say 'God bless the Americans.'"

We walked gingerly around a mined section of the street. At the end of this bottleneck—it was one of Manila's many city centers—the battalion column was taking a break, and Filipino women and girls were rushing among them with coffee.

We paused to rest in front of a barren shop. A man in horn-rim glasses and a patched white coat pushed thru the crowd with a bunch of bananas and distributed them among the troops. "No more Japs. No more Japs," he yelled.

"You glad to see us?"

Hallelujah, Hallelujah!

He waved his arms in inarticulate joy. "Hallelujah," I suggested.

"Hallelujah, Hallelujah!" for the Americans," he shouted.

Tiny children darted out among the troops and grasped hands and walked with them. A G. I. dropped from the line and took a six month old baby from his father's arms and held him up and cooed at him and handed him back with a salute and rejoined the march.

"The Americans, the Americans they come at last," said the father with tears coursing down his face.

All day it had been going on and far into the night. Here and there our flanking patrols on the side streets ran into small knots of Japanese and sharp cleanup fights ensued. Bullets whined about but the people never stopped their cheers and greeting.

I walked for five miles toward the waterfront. A few buildings were smashed and burned but on the whole that part of Manila was not greatly damaged. However, off in the distance we could see huge fires and columns of smoke. The dock area was burning fiercely.

Corps Chief Defers to General.

To the left, miles away, three huge fires were burning in Manila proper. They appeared concentrated and did not cover the entire city.

Maj. Gen. Robert S. Beightler of Columbus, O., was the first divisional general to enter Manila. When the Filipinos saw two stars on his helmet they greeted him like a god.

The grizzled 14th corps commander, Maj. Gen. O. W. Griswold of Elko, Nev., sometimes called "The King of the Solomons" for his work on Guadalcanal, New Georgia, and Bougainville, refused to enter the city today.

"Beightler and the 37th did such a marvelous job from Lingayen to here, I want them to have the honor. But I'm so proud of his old 14th corps and these divisions—the 37th, 40th, and the lately attached 1st cavalry—that all I can say is 'God bless you boys and many thanks.'"

GEN. BEIGHTLER LEADS BUCKEYE BOYS INTO CITY

BY ARTHUR VEYSEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MANILA, P. I., Feb. 4.—This is the day for which thousands of American troops have been fighting for three years. When it came, it was easy.

Maj. Gen. Robert Beightler.

Maj. Gen. Robert Beightler of Columbus, O., leader of the 37th or Buckeye division, composed mostly of troops of the Ohio national guard, personally led his division into Manila. Col. Lawrence White of St. Louis, Mo., commanded the 148th regiment, first outfit of the division to reach the goal.

Our troops reached the Tulla Jau river on the city limits at midmorning. The Japs blew that bridge yesterday. E company, of Canton, O., which is the first in line today, began wading the chest deep river. The rest of us waited for the eager Filipinos to build rafts from empty gasoline drums.

Jap Road Block Crushed.

Just before we entered the town a group of 20 Japs attempted a road block on a railroad overpass—the first one of these we have seen since leaving home—but the advancing column crushed it.

After crossing the river we passed thru the country club district, its mansions dilapidated and their neglected grown-over gardens littered with trash left by the hurriedly evacuating Japs.

At exactly 1:07 this afternoon we entered Quezon City, one of the main districts of Manila. Five blocks ahead spirelike Banofacio monument arose from an intersection. As troops approached it they spotted three Japanese wearing civilian clothes and carrying bundles, but also rifles and helmets. Automatic rifles cut them down.

All day there have been explosions within the city, apparently from Jap demolition efforts. For the last two hours troops advancing on a railroad line to our right have been in a spasmodic fight for a railroad station.

Chicagoan Says "Wow."

We are now at an airstrip that once was a playing field for the Good Shepherd seminary. Three or four wrecked planes lie on the grass before the burned out three story, old English type building.

A Cub plane is now circling. It will take these first news stories from Manila.

We move along the streets. Filipinos come cautiously from their homes to tell us where 5, 20, 100 Japs were yesterday. They run for water. They offer rice wine, cool but powerful.

All in all, it's a wonderful day. As Jim Engelthaler, 925 W. 51st st., Chicago, Ill., walkie talkie man for the lead squad, says: "Wow!"

Dynamited Bridge Keeps MacArthur from Capital.

MacARTHUR'S HDQ., Luzon, Feb. 5 (Monday)—(AP).—Just 26 days after their initial Luzon invasion, American troops speared to the heart of Manila yesterday, freed thousands of civilian war prisoners, seized the governmental palace and pressed against little more than sniper fire toward further control of the Philippines capital.

Gen. MacArthur announced the virtual achievement of his prime goal in a triumphant bulletin today. A dynamited bridge on the northern outskirts prevented the general from entering Manila immediately. He turned back to find another route.

Encircle Prison Camp.

Veteran 1st cavalary division forces made an encircling drive in darkness Saturday night to seize the Santo Tomas internment camp from the east. About 3,000 civilians, mainly American women and children, have been held at Santo Tomas since May 1, 1942.

A sharp engagement occurred at the camp. Front line reports said the guards were killed and the prison was taken over completely after room-to-room fighting. Removal of the prisoners by ambulance began.

Seize Malacanan Palace.

The mechanized cavalry men then captured Malacanan palace, former governmental headquarters of the Philippine commonwealth. Japanese officials had fled.

Elements of the 37th division entered Manila from the north, capturing the Grace Park airdrome, and pushed cautiously toward the wide and deep Pasig river which runs thru the center of the city. Most of the bridges over the Pasig appeared intact.

The Americans held the northern half of Manila, but south of the Pasig, in the commercial center, the Japanese may put up a bloody fight. Demolition explosions were heard and fires were seen in the southern section.

No Stand by Japs.

The enemy offered no major stand in the northern part of Manila. The main threat was harassing machine gun and sniper fire from houses.

Associated Press Correspondent Fred Hampson, with the first cavalry troops, said the liberated Filipinos were deliriously happy as the Yanks poured into their city.

"Victory!" "The Americans are back!" "God bless the Americans!" These were the cries of the liberated.

Hampson walked for five miles toward the Manila waterfront, and wrote that "a few buildings were smashed and burned, but on the whole that part of Manila was not greatly damaged.

"However, off in the distance

Trial of 2 Accused Nazi Agents Opens Tomorrow

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4 (AP).—The trial of two men alleged to have slipped ashore on the Maine coast Nov. 29 as German agents will begin Tuesday at Governors Island, New York, an army spokesman said today. The prisoners, William Curtis Colepaugh and Eric H. Gimpel, are charged with violating the laws of war. The trial will be secret and in charge of a military commission.

we could see huge fires and columns of smoke. The dock area was burning fiercely."

Associated Press Correspondent Russell Brines, with the 1st cavalry, said the 3,000 Santo Tomas internees were liberated.

Brines said "room by room" fighting occurred within the former university. Ambulances brought out many of the internees.

Battle Hundreds of Japs.

A flying squadron of the 1st cavalry had to fight thru machine gun and sniper fire to reach Santo Tomas, Brines said. There they found a force of several hundred Japanese. Another cavalry squadron fought its way to Santo Tomas after the first unit was closely engaged.

Brig. Gen. William C. Chase, the column commander, forced his way into the university ground early Sunday morning. Last reports said Americans controled all of the buildings.

Gen. Chase's cavalry brigade is reported to be having very little difficulty elsewhere in the city. Casualties are comparatively light.

American planes bombed and strafed Japanese ammunition dumps and other objectives of the Japanese-held portion of Manila.

"In the city considerable harassing sniper fire is being encountered and the enemy seems to be attempting demolition destruction," said Gen. MacArthur's bulletin.

Drive Almost Unopposed.

MacArthur's return to Manila just 26 days after the invasion of Luzon Island at Lingayen gulf on Jan. 9 meant the culmination of a virtually unopposed 120 mile drive down the central Luzon plain, coordinated with later invasions on the west coast above and below the capital city.

While the 37th division pushed thru the Grace Park airdrome from the north Saturday night, 1st cavalry spearheads circled into the city from the east, reached Santo Tomas university grounds and threw a protective cordon around its concentration camp this morning.

Gen. MacArthur's bulletin said advance units of the 1st cavalry were guarding the internees "while the remainder of the division is coming up from the east."

The 1st cavalry, fighting in memory of their former commander, Lt. Gen. Jonathan W. Wainwright, who was captured by the invading Japanese in early 1942, had made a quick drive down the eastern flank of the central Luzon plain, the most sensational advance of the entire campaign. The troops entered Manila under cover of darkness.

Find No Jap Officials.

Manila had not been fully occupied by noon Sunday. Caution characterized the tone of official claims, for a large part of Manila still was in Japanese hands. But Gen. MacArthur has power to spare to blast the Japanese from their holes and dugouts in the city.

Americans who reached Santo Tomas and Malacanan this morning could see some fires burning to the south, but aerial observers—already flying light planes from the captured Grace Park airdrome—said there was no evidence of attempted wholesale destruction by the enemy.

The Yanks found no high Japanese officials. They were reported by Filipinos to have left Manila for the summer capital at Baguio at the time of the American landing in Lingayen gulf.

Malacanan palace, now in American hands, was the residence successively of Spanish and American governors general and American high commissioners, and of the late President Manuel Quezon from the birth of the Philippine republic until the hurried departure on Christmas eve, 1941.

Bomb Corregidor Again.

It was just three years and six weeks ago that the last units of MacArthur's tired forces left the capital.

In support of ground operations, heavy bombers again pounded installations at Corregidor fortress at the entrance to Manila bay and the Cavite naval base, causing extensive fires and explosions. Attack bombers hit defenses and supply dumps at Baler bay on the east-central Luzon coast.

Formosa was another target. Heavy bombers raked Okayama airdrome there two nights running, destroying 20 parked planes and starting many fires and explosions.

Brewery Is Main Objective.

IN THE SUBURBS OF MANILA, Feb. 4 (AP).—They said Manila was the objective, but as far as most of the officers and men of the 37th division are concerned, the big brewery in the suburbs marked the high point in the invasion of the city. It was a great day for beer drinkers.

Filipinos were so happy they were near hysteria. They broke into the brewery which the Japanese had left a few hours ago and came streaming out with their arms full of beer bottles. As the saying goes: "There went the ball game."

Practically every G. I. who trudged along the crowded streets had bottles of beer forced on him—of course he didn't protest very much.

One elderly Filipino rushed up to the jeep in which Maj. Gen. Robert Beightler, commander of the Buckeye division, was riding. In his arms he carried many bottles of beer.

"Take, take, take, take," he shouted. "Welcome, welcome, welcome!"

Then he waved three fingers and danced wildly: "Three years with those damned Japanese!"

Thousands Welcome Yanks.

Jumping off from north of Manila, these foot soldiers who marched the entire distance from the Lingayen beachhead since Jan. 9 entered the suburb of Tinageros, then crossed hip deep water around a Japanese destroyed bridge and thrust on into Balintawak, where the brewery is located.

Paratroopers Invade Luzon.

Elements of the 511th paratroop regiment floated down at dawn today on Tagaytay ridge, 21 road miles east of the Batangas invasion beachhead at Nasugbu.

Quickly the paratroopers established road blocks on the highway which shoots down to Cavite and Manila.

The daring attack caught the Japanese by surprise. Not a Japanese was in the immediate vicinity, and a strong force of the enemy was caught between the paratroopers and other elements of the 11th air borne division driving inland from Nasugbu.

During the darkness last night eight scouts crept thru strong Japanese lines to the crest of a 2,000 foot Tagaytay ridge and lit brilliant flares outlying the dropping target.

Immediately big troop transports, which had been rendezvousing near-by, swept over and spilled out hundreds of paratroops. Within a matter of minutes the main force had hit the ground and spread in a prearranged pattern.

JAPS SILENT ON MANILA.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Five hours after Gen. MacArthur's announcement on entry into the Philippine capital, Tokyo has made no mention of it either in domestic or overseas radio and wireless transmissions.

Earlier the federal communications commission reported Japanese controled Singapore, which normally relays Manila radio's propaganda programs, went off the air inexplicably 11 minutes after the start of its 7 p. m. [Chicago time] broadcast.

'STAR SPANGLED BANNER' PLAYED AT JAP CONCERTS

MALOLOS, Luzon, Feb. 3 [Delayed]—(AP).—There are still a few pianos left in this town which the Japanese failed to smash during wholesale destruction of furniture in many homes and one of them was playing swing music.

The pianist, a young Filipino guerrilla, was hot on the keyes. Then the tune became familiar. It was the Star Spangled Banner in swingtime. The pianist played it often during enforced recitals for Japanese officers. They never tumbled to it, he said.

The Japanese, he added, never knew what the Filipinos meant when they said the "Canoes are coming." That is a contraction for "Americanos."

HANGS HIMSELF IN JAIL.

Carl O. Blomgren, 38, who said he lived at 4340 Kenmore av. and described himself as a juke box maintenance man, hanged himself in his cell in the Park Ridge jail last night, a few hours after he had been arrested on a disorderly conduct charge.

ARMY BOMBERS RAID IWO ISLAND; CHICHI BLASTED BY FLYERS

PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., Feb. 5 [Monday]—[Via navy radio]—(AP).—Army Liberators bombed Iwo Island in the Volcano Islands Friday and Saturday, concentrating on air installations and storage areas, Adm. Nimitz announced today. Oft bombed Iwo is 750 miles south of Tokyo.

Chichi Island in the nearby Bonins also was bombed on Friday.

Navy search Venturas in the North Pacific made machine gun and rocket attacks on buildings and radio installations at Kurabu Saki on Paramushiru and at Shimushu islands in the Kuriles.

Far ranging marine aircraft bombed installations on Yap in the by-passed western Carolines, Babelthuap in the Palau Islands, and installations on Rota in the Marianas on Friday.

M'ARTHUR'S MEN ENTER MANILA IN 3½ MONTHS

'Who Wins Luzon Wins War,' Said the Japs.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

MacArthur's landing on Luzon initiated the second big phase of the Philippines liberation campaign, which started last Oct. 20 with the invasion of Leyte Island and resulted in entering Manila within 3½ months.

Seven American divisions, comprising the 10th and 24th corps of the 6th army, battled rugged mountain jungle terrain, typhoon weather, and do-or-die Japanese resistance to take Leyte in a little more than two months. MacArthur pronounced the Leyte campaign closed Dec. 6, except for mopping up, which is continuing.

Japanese leaders, from Premier Koiso down, said at first that the outcome of the Leyte fighting would tell the story in the Pacific war. But when they saw they were losing the island they transferred their crisis theme to Luzon and said the victor there would win the war.

Jap Navy Broken.

The Japanese navy was broken in the Oct. 23-26 battle of Leyte gulf, official name now given the second battle of the Philippine seas. With 58 enemy ships sunk or damaged by the United States 3d and 7th fleets, 6th army units next landed on the southwest coast of Mindoro Island Dec. 15, capturing San Jose town and airdrome with light ground opposition.

On Jan. 6 Yank ground forces seized Marinduque Island off the south coast of Luzon, and two days later other units took the town of Paluan on the northwest coast of Mindoro.

Fool Jap Commander.

These two operations, putting the Americans in position for short over-water hops to Luzon and not more than 100 air line miles from Manila, apparently fooled the Japanese commander into expecting the invasion on the island's south coast.

American convoys ran a tough gantlet of Japanese aircraft to reach the Lingayen gulf coast on western Luzon Jan. 9, but once ashore the ground opposition was slight. Nipponese troops fled into the mountains.

Clark Field Taken.

At Rosario the Japanese battled to hold the mountain road leading to Baguio. But the 1st corps took Rosario a few days ago, preventing Japanese sallies from the mountains, and the 14th corps began rolling on the right.

On Jan. 22 the Americans took Tarlac, capital of the province by that name, finding the town had been razed by the fleeing Japanese.

Capture of Clark field with its 17 air strips and near-by Fort Stotsenburg came on Jan. 26. Here the Japanese from near-by hill positions offered their first stiff resistance against the 14th corps' advance.

The new American 8th army came ashore on the southern Zambales province coast above Subic bay Jan. 29 and the 11th air borne division of the same army landed on the Batangas province coast, just south of the entrance to Manila bay, two days later.

Not a Shot Fired.

Not a shot was fired in the Zambales invasion as the American troops, cheered on by Filipinos, struck south to take Olongapo, former United States naval base on Subic bay. They then turned inland to stretch a line across the neck of historic Bataan peninsula, on their way to Manila.

Meanwhile, the 6th army, moving down the central plains from Lingayen gulf moved thru and around the east side of the Pampanga marshes, and on down the straight highway to Manila.

The 1st cavalry division, in the swiftest advance of the plains, dashed around the east side of the swamps and won in the final race to Manila.

COLORFUL STORY OF MANILA GAINS A NEW CHAPTER

Ancient City Made Modern by U.S.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

The storied city of Manila was the focal point of the Philippines when the Japanese launched their attack Dec. 8, 1941. All the enemy landings on Luzon Island, following quickly after Pearl Harbor, were but bridgeheads for the general assault on Manila.

Spacious Manila bay is the finest harbor in the far east. As a commercial and navy key it occupies a commanding position in navigation to southern China, the French East Indies, and Australasia.

Miguel Lopez de Legaspi founded Manila in 1571, six years after he had conquered the Philippine Islands for Spain. The Spaniards followed trail blazing Fernando Magellan, the Portuguese explorer, who discovered the archipelago in 1521.

Aguinaldo Captured.

It was in Manila bay that Adm. George Dewey destroyed the Spanish fleet in 1898, during the Spanish-American war. The Americans acquired the islands by virtue of the treaty of Paris which ended the war.

American control of the islands was disrupted by Filipino insurrectionists led by Emilio Aguinaldo in fighting which ended with Aguinaldo's capture by Gen. Frederick Funston March 23, 1901.

Manila underwent extensive modernization under United States rule of the islands. Americans assisted in modernization of the harbor, effected sanitary improvements, built bridges, boulevards, and installed an electric trolley system. The city grew into a metropolis of 14 square miles with a population of 623,362 in 1939.

Set Free by 1946.

In 1935 the Commonwealth of the Philippines came into being under the Tydings-McDuffie act, which authorized establishment of a Filipino government and provided for complete independence July 4, 1946.

The late Manuel Quezon became the first president of the commonwealth, which also had a legislative chamber and courts.

Quezon was chosen president a second time and was inducted in December, 1941, while the Japanese were overrunning the islands. He was evacuated with MacArthur and came to the United States to set up a government in exile. He died at Saranac Lake, N. Y., last Aug. 1 and Vice President Sergio Osmena, who had fled with Quezon, became president.

WRITER ON 5TH ARMY FRONT JUBILANT OVER ENTRY INTO MANILA

WITH THE U. S. 5TH ARMY IN ITALY, Feb. 4 (AP).—A radio here in the heart of the Appenines near Bologna blared out a report today that "American forces have captured Manila and taken a large concentration camp." Sgt. Stan Swinton, front line correspondent for the army newspaper Stars and Stripes jumped to his feet with tears in his eyes.

"I've been waiting three years to hear that news," he shouted. "That's where my mother and dad and Barbara are."

Swinton's father, Prof. Roy Swinton, left the University of Michigan five years ago and joined the faculty at the University of the Philippines and in February, 1941, his wife and his daughter, Barbara Gene, 22, followed. When Manila fell, all Stan received was the routine prisoner of war notification saying his folks were in the Santo Tomas prison camp.

LAST FLAG OVER LUZON BURNED IN MANILA PRISON

WITH AMERICAN FORCES ON LUZON, Feb. 4 (AP).—The Stars and Stripes were lowered over Corregidor May 6, 1942, but the last American flag to fly over Luzon until the Yanks returned 26 days ago never was captured by the Japanese.

Pvt. Fred Vinton, Jackson, Mich., one of 19 marines rescued from Cabanatuan prison camp, said a navy hospital corpsman wrapped the flag around his waist and carried it away from "the rock."

At Bilibid prison in Manila the corpsman handed the flag to a marine captain, who burned the colors and buried the ashes.

AMERICANS PROUD OF M'ARTHUR AND YANKS, F. D. R. TELLS OSMENA

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4 (AP).—Hailing the entry into Manila, President Roosevelt today said in part in a message to President Osmena of the Philippines:

"The American people rejoice with me in the liberation of your capital. After long years of planning our hearts have quickened at the magnificent strides toward freedom that have been made in the last months—at Leyte, Mindora, Lingayen Gulf, and now Manila.

"We are proud of the mighty blows struck by Gen. MacArthur, our sailors, soldiers, and airmen; and in their comradeship in arms with your loyal and valiant people who in the darkest days have not ceased to fight for their independence. You may be sure that this pride will strengthen our determination to drive the Jap invader from your islands.

"Let the Japanese and other enemies of peaceful nations take warning from these great events in your country: their world of treachery, aggression, and enslavement cannot survive in the struggle against our world of freedom and peace."

LOSES $8 WHEN HE FALLS.

When Douglas Greenman, 1018 Olive av., Aurora, ran to catch a street car at 18th st. and Wabash av. last night, he slipped and fell. When he prepared to pay his fare on the next car, he discovered he had lost his pocketbook and $8.

AN ANGEL HELPS BATAAN HEROES IN PRISON CAMP

Mrs. Yu Smuggles Food and Medicine to Men.

[This is the fourth of a series of articles telling the story of Pvt. Charles Jensen, 6528 S. Hermitage av., a member of Company B, Maywood tank battalion; Pvt. Norman J. Lev, 5023 N. Lawndale av., and others captured on Bataan, and rescued by army Rangers and guerrillas from prison Camp Cabanatuan last Tuesday.]

BY PVTS. CHARLES JENSEN AND NORMAN J. LEV.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE RANGERS ON LUZON, P. I., Feb. 4.—We had our angels in the prison camps of O'Donnell and Cabanatuan. A padre was an angel, and Mrs. Yu was an archangel. Nothing any one can do for her will ever repay her service to us.

As the troops retreated into Bataan, Mrs. Yu set up her own Red Cross on Bataan, having secured food and medicines from Manila. At the fall of Bataan her husband was captured. He was in the death march to O'Donnell and died within a month.

During the last days of Bataan, Mrs. Yu became ill with malaria. The Filipino Red Cross slipped her back into Manila and nursed her back to health.

Well again, Mrs. Yu began gathering food and supplies for the American prisoners at the prison camp at O'Donnell, eighty miles to the north. In July she was ready. She knew she could not take the food into the camp legally, so she began a campaign of bribery with the Jap guards. Nobody knows all the ways she tried. One was the ruse of the gravel truck. She had fixed the Jap guard on a detail which hauled gravel into the camp. She loaded her supplies onto a truck, covered them with gravel, and the driver slipped it into camp and disbursed the food at night.

Mango Beans Cure Dysentery.

In November of that first year, dysentery was rampant. For a cure there is nothing better than the mango bean, a small, hard green bean the size of a small pea. Its vitamin content is high. In one truck load of gravel Mrs. Yu smuggled nine bags of the beans. The dysentery fell off.

When the prisoners were transferred from O'Donnell Mrs. Yu followed them. She even managed to have a piano brought in. One American to join forces with Mrs. Yu was Vernon Booth of Indianapolis, Ind. Booth, a Texaco oil company employe before the war, was assigned by the Japs to operate the power plant at Capas. It was there that Mrs. Yu found him. He helped to work out distribution within the camp.

In 1943 the Japs picked up Mrs. Yu on one of her trips to Manila and accused her of helping the prisoners. She denied this. The Japs beat her, but she kept her secret.

Begged, Borrowed and Stole.

For a time Mrs. Yu worked thru a pretty, 25 year old Filipino girl who had been protecting three Americans in her home in Manila. The Japs finally caught up with the girl, killed two of the Americans, beat her, and took the third American away.

Mrs. Yu begged, borrowed, and stole. She baked cakes and sold them on Manila streets. Her friends banged doors in her face and ran when they saw her. Yet by hook and crook she kept food and money coming into Cabanatuan.

Unlike some rich prisoners who were putting out their money to other prisoners at two for one rates, Mrs. Yu rejected I. O. U.s and expected no repayment. Not one prisoner who ever sent a message to Mrs. Yu asking for money with which to buy commissary food did without. Mrs. Yu also was a regular telephone line into camp.

The padre worked more openly, convincing the Jap commander he had proper entry into Cabanatuan. Each time he visited he brought money and a truck load of food and medicine.

Japs Break Medicine Bottles.

By early 1944, the money being spent for food in the commissary was 10 times the total pay to the prisoners. Some Jap official squawked, and there was a cleanup. Soon a major known to the prisoners as Take-a-Socko was installed. He ordered the arrest of Mrs. Yu.

Several prisoners were thrown into a dungeon and kept there for weeks, supposedly for being in communication with Mrs. Yu, about the same time she was arrested in Manila.

The padre, not knowing of the change in camp administration, drove up to the gate with his usual truck load. The sentry stopped him. The padre argued, but Take-a-Socko was firm. He confiscated the food. He took the medicine, bottle by bottle, and smashed it on fence posts—medicine that would have saved the lives of many Americans.

So, since last February the camp has been without an angel. It was miserable. No Red Cross supplies came thru. Every one wondered where the supplies were going.

When the Japs fled Jan. 7 the prisoners learned the answer. One barracks was full of Red Cross medicines and clothing—which Take-a-Socko had refused to distribute. The Japs, who believe in no angels, allow angels to no one else.

Bomb Jap Isle

Where B-29s struck.

B-29 BOMBER HDQ., Guam, Feb. 5 [Monday]—(AP).—A force of Super Fortresses, battling a heavy wind but only moderate fighter opposition and flak, set 22 major fires in Kobe, Japan, yesterday.

The fires, primarily along the northwest edge of the city, were being blown toward the center of Japan's sixth largest city, photographs showed today. Six fires were burning around a large plant in the center of the city and two more were observed in the congested area near the waterfront. None of the B-29s was lost in combat, altho one fell into the sea on the return flight. The crew was rescued. [Tokyo estimated 100 planes made the raid.]

[Twentieth air force headquarters in Washington, D. C., said three Japanese planes were destroyed, 10 probably destroyed and 29 damaged.]

SCARS OF WAR MARK MANILA'S SLAVERY YEARS

BY RAY CRONIN.
[Chief of the former Associated Press Manila Bureau.]

San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 4 (AP).—When Gen. MacArthur's legions entered Manila the city was not the same gay Manila, "Pearl of the Orient," that it was in pre-war days.

The scars of war are upon it, scars that will remain for years to come and mental scars that will never be forgotten by the thousands who suffered indignities and came close to starvation under the banner of the Rising Sun.

Manila, a mixture of the orient and the occident, had a population of 623,000. When the war struck, the figure shot well over a million. People from surrounding provinces rushed madly into the metropolis.

Add to Food Problem.

These added thousands caused a food problem that was serious even before the Japanese entered and stole almost everything in sight, including stored supplies of rice, the staff of life to the Filipinos.

Under the American flag Manila had become a great city. Its fine water system was developed, its boulevards were constructed, and its modern business and residential districts brought to life. Its people, and other Filipinos as well, were given free education, their health was improved, their standard of living elevated to the highest of any oriental country.

Then came the disrupting influence of the Japanese. The school system was upset. Health was a secondary consideration. The city became filthy—streets littered with uncollected garbage and rats multiplying fast.

Sees Demolition Fires.

I lived in Manila six years—existed there 21 more months in the Japanese Santo Tomas camp until repatriated. My last good look at Manila just before the Japanese entered will remain with me always.

From the roof of Manila hotel at night, just two days before the invaders came in, I saw sights that caused me to fear the city would be destroyed by fire. The bay pier area and the great United States quartermaster installations were a roaring furnace, shooting smoke and flames hundreds of feet into the air.

To the north, army gasoline and oil installations were exploding and burning. To the east, demolition squads were finishing off what was left of the Nichols air field. Across the bay I could see a giant cloud of smoke that had lingered for days. It was the final trace of the destruction of the great Cavite naval base.

Filth and Idleness.

While in the internment camp, I got but one glimpse of outside Manila. That was when the Japanese permitted me to go to a hospital to have some X-rays taken. As the ambulance carried me thru the city—both downtown district and residential area—I was amazed at the filth on all sides, streets littered with garbage and other refuse, and business houses standing idle.

It was not the Manila I knew. It was a Japanese Manila where filth and idleness became a part of everyday life.

There was high hope for the city, however, because I knew that most of the Filipinos were pro-Americans, biding their time until the flag came back, killing off as many Japanese as possible.

One band of guerrillas totaling 5,000 was operating right in the city. Members of that band tried to liquidate the puppet president, Jose P. Laurel. It did liquidate many of the puppets and collaborators.

Mixes Ancient and Modern.

Manila, sprawling along the shores of the great bay of the same name and along the Pasig river that flows thru the heart of the city, is a strange mixture of modern and the ancient.

The modern is to be found in the downtown district and the finer residential sections—air conditioned buildings, fine apartment houses, hotels, and clubs and residences that compare favorably with those to be found in American cities.

The better districts included Escolta business area; Dewey boulevard, along Manila bay, with its big hotels, apartment houses and residences, the home of the United States high commissioner and the commanding general of the Philippines department; the Malate and Ermita districts with their fine residences near the bay area, and Pasay, the bay suburb where hundreds of Americans lived.

Slums Inside Walls.

On the ancient side are the walled city, called Intramuros, facing the Pasig river on one side and Luneta park on the other; the teeming Filipino district of Tondo, the slum section, and Quiapo; the great native markets covering whole blocks; mysterious Chinatown, in the business area. The walled city is a throwback to the days when Spain held the islands.

The southeast corner of the walled city is an historic spot. It was there, atop the broad wall, that the American first went up in the Philippines flag first went up in the Philippines and again will again fling Old Glory to the breeze.

The thickly populated Tondo district fronts on Manila bay and the river. Thousands of Filipinos, and some Chinese, are jammed so thickly that many small shacks are called home by upwards of three and four families. Most of the houses are fire traps—nothing more than Nipa palm leaf shacks. Chickens and pigs run about the street, while hundreds of tiny native horses, hauling wheeled carts called caromatas, add greatly to the difficulties of the few street cleaners at work.

Tondo, however, is the exception. Most other districts are clean and the houses are of durable materials.

CHICAGO WOMAN FIRST TO ESCAPE FROM MANILA

BY DONALD STARR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ON THE ROAD TO MANILA, Luzon, P. I., Feb. 2 [Delayed].—A native Chicagoan, Mrs. Miguel Velarde, is believed to be the first woman to come thru the Jap lines from Manila.

Mrs. Velarde is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Brearley, 7254 Jeffery av., Chicago. Her father is an employe of the Breevort hotel. She last heard from her parents last November.

Paddle Canoe 15 Miles.

The trip from Manila was made in the company of her husband, Miguel, musical director and writer, who paddled a dugout canoe 15 miles up river thru the Jap lines.

Mrs. Velarde escaped the roundup of Americans in Manila thru registration by her husband as a Filipino and by taking the precaution of staying indoors, not even daring to go to the window. Both she and her husband have lost weight during the Jap occupation. From a normal weight of 130 pounds she dropped to 106.

Eat Dogs and Cats.

The Velardes said residents of Manila were reduced to eating dogs and cats, adding that a rat thrown from the window was eagerly pounced on by the hungry Filipinos. Residents of the capital were told by the Japs that the Americans were still engaged at Lingayen.

"The citizens of Manila would not believe the Americans are so close, even if I returned and told them," she said.

FIRST WORD SINCE 1942.

Starr's story is the first word of Mrs. Velarde that has reached her father, Bert Brearley, 7254 Jeffery av., and her stepmother, Laverne, since five days before Manila fell to the Japs in 1942.

"Isabelle has been on our minds constantly in the last three years and it is a wonderful relief to know she is safe," Brearley said.

Mrs. Velarde, now 27, was traveling in the Philippines seven years ago when she met Velarde there and they were married. At that time he was a musical director for a Filipino motion picture producer. They have three children.

Mrs. Velarde is a graduate of Roosevelt High school. She has a sister, Lois.

ESTIMATE REICH HAS 23 MILLION WAR REFUGEES

Total Increased by Reds' Offensive.

PARIS, Feb. 4 (AP).—The present Russian offensive has raised the number of war refugees inside Germany to 23 million, more than one-third of the reich's pre-war population, information available at supreme headquarters showed today.

Before the beginning of the Red army's drive on Berlin more than 20 million Germans were made homeless or forced into temporary shelters away from home by the allied aerial hammering of the reich's cities, the civil affairs section at Shaef, estimated.

The plight of these people is strictly a German affair, for allied plans for military government in Germany after her surrender make no provision for outside aid in rehabilitating towns, industry, or population.

Seek to Rescue Captives.

Of vital interest, however, to the allies is the rescue of displaced persons of non-German nationality inside Germany. This number is estimated at six million, not counting French, Russian, and other allied prisoners of war.

Technically, a displaced person is a civilian swept by war into an alien land, such as foreign workers made captive in the reich. Prisoners of war must be added to the total awaiting repatriation. This figure is estimated at 800,000, and possibly higher.

Thus far the displaced persons branch of the civil affairs section at Shaef has supervised evacuation of 210,000 displaced persons from the combat zones of France, Belgium, the Netherlands, and Luxemburg.

News Services Disrupted.

LONDON, Feb. 4 [Reuters].—Germany's news services tonight still showed signs of disruption both on the technical and editorial sides following yesterday's 1,900 plane raid.

The word "Schluss" [the end] appeared time and again instead of news material on recordings of the German DNB news agency's broadcasts. Up to 8 o'clock tonight none of the German commentators had spoken. Only one report from the eastern front had been broadcast up to this time and other war news was limited to a few short items from the western front.

DNB services for Europe and for home consumption maintained a skeleton alternating service, one going off the air when the other was coming on.

In addition, transmission was erratic and messages were repeated four or five times before they were completely readable.

First Convoy Over Burma Road Reaches Kunming

GREEK LEFTISTS ASK AMNESTY AT PEACE PARLEY

Agree to Disarming of ELAS.

ATHENS, Greece, Feb. 4 (AP).—EAM [leftist liberation front] delegates to the Greek peace conference were understood today to have agreed to the disarmament of their military branch, the ELAS, but apparently were in disagreement with Greek government representatives over the question of amnesty.

Speaking for the EAM-ELAS, Communist Secretary Gen. Siantos asked for a general amnesty and said the government would find it impossible to differentiate between crimes under the penal code and political crimes such as sedition. He asserted that the government freely brought charges against the EAM-ELAS concerning hostages but did not refer to prisoners taken and held by the government.

Favor National Army.

Siantos said the EAM consented to the dissolution of the ELAS but wanted to see the formation of a national army free of all political opinion.

The communist leader also demanded a sweeping reorganization of the police, and a general clean-up of governmental offices to be sure there were no collaborationists remaining and to oust "those who wish to create an anti-social state."

The government delegation tonight forwarded to the left wing conferees a detailed explanation and clarification of its definition of penal offenses as opposed to political crimes.

Trials Suspended.

SURVIVOR TELLS HOW NAZIS MASSACRED 1,000 IN POLISH CITY

LODZ, Poland, Feb. 3 [Delayed]—(AP).—Charred bodies sprawled beside the gaunt brick ruins of a Nazi prison camp and sobbing Polish children laid tiny wreaths and flowers upon their dead today.

Frantiszek Zaremski, 30 year old Polish carpenter, told how German SS guards slaughtered from 1,000 to 3,000 young Polish men on Jan. 18, the day before Lodz was captured by soviet armored forces, in an old textile factory on the outskirts of the city.

The story of Radogosczcz—this transit prison camp—as told today by Zaremski took rank with the most subhuman chapters of Nazi rule in Europe. For hours on end, he said, the massacre continued methodically while, elsewhere in Lodz, the Germans failed to carry out even minor sabotage of what could be considered military installations. Only two others besides himself survived, Zaremski said, and they still were in a hospital.

Meanwhile, Premier Nicholas Plastiras has issued an order to the effect that treason and murder trials of the leftists will be suspended until after the peace conference, and that those sentences which already have been passed will not be carried out until further notice.

Nine former cabinet members who took office under the axis occupation of Greece will stand individual trial in civil court, it was announced. They are to be brought by air from custody in Egypt. Jean Rallis, last Quisling premier who stayed behind when the Germans left Athens, and Gen. Theodore Pangalos, one time revolutionary Venezellist, also will be tried.

U.S. AND RUSSIAN RADIOS CALL ON NAZIS TO GIVE UP

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

American and Russian broadcasts last night called on the German army to surrender, with Moscow sounding the theme, "Hitler has lost the war."

The United States army broadcast to German troops on the western front asserted Nazis leaders had gambled on a hopeless venture, with the stake "your life."

No Escape, Says Moscow.

Moscow radio declared there was no escape from the ring closing on Germany. "Five million Germans are dead," it said. "Today Hitler is throwing 15 and 14 year old children into the futile fight. Old men and women, cripples have to save Germany. Refugees stream into Berlin, but Hitler welcomes them with hunting squads, and volkssturm battalions."

Nazi leaders, it added, insist the war must go on "so that the bloody skins of the Nazi henchmen survive one more week or one more month. . . .

"There is just one choice left, between national catastrophe or rescue. National catastrophe is inevitable if the war goes on. The rescue from total catastrophe lies in surrender . . ."

Cites Prisoners' Privileges.

The United States army message from ABSIE, the American broadcasting station in Europe, cited the privileges given German prisoners who will "return home as soon as possible after the end of the war."

"The great Rundstedt counter-offensive was an adventurous gamble with your life," said the ABSIE broadcast. It added that Propaganda Minister Goebbels wanted it because "He knew the patience of the German people was beginning to break. The spectre of the final reckoning arose before him. A successful attack meant a last respite. A defeat meant tens of thousands more German dead. The stake: Your life."

JAPS ADVANCE 32 MI. IN DRIVE UPON AIR BASES

CHUNGKING, China, Feb. 4 (AP).—Reënforced Japanese troops, driving against air bases east of their China-Indo-China corridor, have advanced 32 miles from fallen Suichwan to positions 18 miles from Kanhsien [Kanchow], the Chinese high command said tonight.

The Chinese also acknowledged the loss of Chihing, 30 miles east of Kukong, the fallen provisional capital of Kwangtung province. The Japanese have slashed southward from Chihing, which they probably intend to convert into one of the key points for safeguarding the east flank of their new corridor from Hengyang to Hong Kong.

NAZIS' OFFICIAL REPORT OF EAST FRONT FIGHTING

The German Sunday war bulletin as broadcast from Berlin, said:

"In Hungary between Lake Balaton and Lake Velencze the enemy tried to press in our front with the support of numerous tanks.

"In Budapest the heroically fighting garrison defended the castle obstinately, as well as town districts south and southwest there from, against a far superior enemy.

"Between the western Beskides and the upper Oder fierce soviet attacks failed.

On the Oder front between Ratibor and the Oder marshes all attempts of the enemy to expand his bridgeheads were frustrated. Several of these bridgeheads were reduced by our counter-attacks. Near Glogau 21 tanks were liquidated by close quarter fighting, means. Soviet attacks southeast of Frankfurt-on-Oder and at Kustrin were unsuccessful.

"The garrison of Schneidemuehl and Poznan were engaged also yesterday in grim defensive fights. Also on the Pomeranian front violent fighting developed near Pyritz, Arnswalde and the northeast of Jastrow. The garrison of Torun [Thorn] fought its way back to its own lines as ordered.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Feb. 4 (AP).—The Swedish newspaper Aftontidningen in an undated "private" dispatch said today that residents of Berlin have been alerted to the possibility of an early allied attempt to land air borne troops in the capital area. NAZIS GO OUT FOR BREAKFAST, YANKS DROP IN

BY ROBERT CROMIE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE AMERICAN 3D ARMY, Luxemburg, Feb. 4.—Some little stories from here and there:

Three Nazi officers and 17 enlisted men returning contentedly from breakfast to their foxholes met a rude surprise by courtesy of 35th infantry division doughboys led by Capt. William M. Denny of Clayton, Mo., of the 134th regiment.

Capt. Denny, under the protection of a heavy mist, had taken a group of Americans into the German position and noticed the Germans march from their holes leaving only a few outpost guards. So the Yanks sneaked past the guards, occupied the holes, and when the rightful owners returned gobbled them up as prisoners.

Capt. Denny's wife, Anna, lives in Kewanee, Ill.

Second Lt. Sylvester M. Beyer of Wheaton, Ill., was forward artillery observer with infantrymen of the 94th division who captured a house with a German 88 nearby. Lt. Beyer found ammunition for the German gun, recruited one doughboy as a gun crew, and fired it point blank into a German pillbox which then was easily taken. That night the Yanks were ordered to withdraw. Beyer crammed the muzzle of the 88 with mud, tied a long cord to the lanyard, and fired from a discreet distance, ruining the gun.

Lt. Col. Hal S. Whitely of Dowagiac, Mich., Beyer's commanding officer, says Beyer's work would have won him a battlefield commission if he hadn't received one from the 94th division a week ago.

Sgt. Willard E. Scroggins, member of an 89th cavalry reconnaissance squadron of the 9th armored division, was leading a patrol when he spotted a German tank 300 yards away. The tank commander's head, poked cautiously from the turret, attracted the attention of Sgt. Scroggins who picked off the Nazi with a single shot. The remainder of the tank crew was easy prey for American armor. "It's my deadly Missouri aim," said Sgt. Scroggins who comes from Springfield.

Corp. Edward C. Hintz, of the 19th tank battalion of the 9th armored division, whose home is in Milwaukee, Wis., was bounced from his bed a few nights ago when a German shell hit the building, knocking down the walls, killing or injuring six cows in a nearby barn. But it failed to explode.

The 60th armored infantry battalion with the 9th armored division helped beat off a German counter-attack and then Sgt. Robert H. Sutherland, 402 S. Kilbourne av., Chicago, Ill., and Pvt. Harry A. Piotrwoski of Detroit, Mich., left their foxholes in quest of German weapons. They found a recumbent Nazi with a burp gun clasped in his arms, rolled him over and took the gun, but noticed his eyelids flicker. Investigation in the form of a few well placed kicks revealed others also shamming death so the two doughboys returned with nine prisoners.

BURGLARS GET NARCOTICS.

BELIEVED DEAD; SERGEANT BACK HOME FOR VISIT

Some Aurora people were startled yesterday when Staff Sgt. Fred L. James, 46, a 20 year man in the army, appeared in their midst. They believed he had been killed in an accident at Perrin field, Tex., on Nov. 5, 1942, and was the man they had buried in Aurora.

Sgt. James, who served with the 9th air force in England and recently returned to Fort Sheridan for reassignment, went to visit his half-brother, Earl W. Groff, 47, of 449 Kingsbury av., whom he had not seen or communicated with for 20 years.

Groff told the sergeant he now knew the man killed in Texas was Fred's younger brother, Adrian Thomas James, 184 S. La Salle st. After Fred went away, back in 1925, Adrian assumed his brother's name and was drafted on May 13, 1942, as Fred L. James.

Groff said the soldier's body was badly crushed. He was not sure whether it was Fred or Adrian after the army reported it had only one Fred James. The sergeant wondered how he would be able to prove he is not dead and that he will be entitled to a pension four months hence.

TINIAN ISLAND'S KOREANS SEND $666.35 TO F. D. R.

PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., Feb. 4 (AP). — To President Roosevelt the Korean people of Camp Churo on Tinian Island in the Marianas today sent greetings and $665.35. As their representative, Ri Shun-sai, explained as he handed a hand-made banner to Vice Adm. John Hoover:

"We Korean people have been dedicating our lives to your cause, since the Americans landed on Tinian. So the 2,400 Koreans there decided the most appropriate thing we could do would be to make a monetary contribution to American national defense.

"It is not much money but, because it is the crystalized salt of the daily sweat of 2,400 Koreans living on Tinian and because it represents their unanimous spirit, please accept it and use it for American naval expenditures."

LITTLE FUEHRER BREEDING PLACE FALLS TO YANKS

9th Division Also Attacks Big German Dam.

BY JOHN THOMPSON.
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

WITH THE U. S. 1ST ARMY, Germany, Feb. 4.—Pounding on as much as four and a half miles today, the veteran 9th division broke thru the main positions of the Siegfried line and reached the shores of beautiful Urft lake, two miles northeast of Gemund. Other elements of the 47th infantry regiment late today were within 1,000 yards of the massive Urfttalsperre dam, which controls the headwaters of the Roer river, into which the Urft flows a few miles below the dam.

The 9th division, now under the command of Maj. Gen. Louis Craig, is the outfit which, under the leadership of Maj. Gen. Manton S. Eddy, cut the Cherbourg peninsula and later led the assault on Cherbourg which trapped Nazi Gen. von Schlieben and his large garrison.

Take Nazi Fuehrer School.

In addition, the veteran 9th's assault regiment also captured Odensburg Vogelsang, an elaborate concrete school at the southern end of the lake, where the Nazis trained their picked men for military leadership. This school was the first of the so-called fuehrer training establishments.

The Urfttalsperre dam, which the 9th division is now attacking, is a massive concrete gravity arch structure, erected early in this century to control floods on the Roer river and supply hydroelectric power for the factories of the Aachen and Duren areas. The power outlet leads north across dense woods to a hydroelectric plant at Heimbach on the Roer river.

When full, which it isn't now, the Urfttalsperre holds the waters of the Urft river, backed up five miles, in a man-made lake twisting among deep gorges, flanked by plantations, pines, and summer estates of the wealthy.

Dam 180 Feet High.

The dam is 180 feet high. It tapers from an 18 foot crest down to a width of 150 feet at the base, and has an over-all length of 678 feet, with a solid rock spillway at one end.

The evacuation of 2,000 embryonic fuehrers from Odensburg Vogelsang took place some time ago after that training school had been bombed. The soldiers who fought into it today with little trouble said 40 per cent of the establishment had been destroyed by aerial bombardment.

It was there that the little fuehrers fed on party dogma, listening to tales of conquest, of leadership, of the herrenvolk. With their showy daggers and their black boots, they paraded, sometimes even before Hitler himself.

Huge Rooms Underground.

Underground were huge storerooms and other classrooms, supposedly safe from bombing. The young students' prize horses, upon which they often cantered thru the leafy glades, also were stabled there.

Above ground, in the huge sports stadium, the young Nazis goosestepped or marched with tribal solemnity behind their massed Nazi flags or great occasions. And it was said that the Nazi flag never had been hauled down from the school's staff until the decadent Americans approached too near to what had been considered almost a Nazi shrine.

GERMAN WAR OFFICES BLASTED IN BERLIN RAID

LONDON, Feb. 4 (AP).—German broadcasts warned of four separate forces of bombers winging over the reich tonight, possibly indicating an R. A. F. Mosquito attack on Berlin, whose heart was scourged by 1,000 United States Flying Fortresses Saturday.

The record American assault scored eight direct hits on the German air ministry, and poured 18 concentrations of bombs into the area occupied by the war office, Hitler's reich chancellery, Goebbels' ministry of propaganda, and Gestapo headquarters, an American bulletin disclosed.

Buildings in the heart of Berlin were left gutted and charred from one of the war's best jobs of bombing marksmanship. Badly disrupted radio broadcasting services provided one indication of the confusion wrought in the refugee-filled capital, less than 40 miles from Russian lines.

Smoke Two Miles High.

The 1,000 Flying Fortresses left an almost unbroken mass of fire and smoke over an area two miles long and a mile wide in the core of the city, and smoke boiled up more than two miles high thru the clouds, United States strategic air force headquarters said.

The cost was 19 bombers and five fighters, including losses in a simultaneous strike on Magdeburg to the southwest.

The huge pall of smoke rising after the air ministry building was stricken made it impossible for photograph interpreters to plot direct hits on the other key buildings near-by, the bulletin said.

Besides the war office, chancellery, propaganda ministry, and gestapo headquarters, the ministry of agriculture and other important government structures are concentrated in the area battered in the hail of 2,500 tons of bombs. It is likely, however, that many German government offices have been moved from the area.

Railroad Stations Hit.

Bombs damaged the Potsdamer, Friedrichstrasse, Anhalter, Gorlitzer, and Schlesischer railroad stations and adjacent rail lines, severely mauled the Tempelhof freight yards and the Deutsche Gesellschaft gas works near the center of Berlin.

Four hundred Liberators struck at the Rothensee oil plant and near-by Magdeburg freight yards. Some 900 escorting fighters downed 21 German fighters, wrecked 17 more aground, and shot up dozens of locomotives and freight cars and trucks.

5TH INFANTRY, FIRST DIVISION OVERSEAS, GETS LEAVE PRIORITY

WITH THE 3D ARMY, Feb. 4 (AP).—The 5th infantry, the first American division overseas, has been granted top priority in the 3d army for 30 day furloughs in the United States. The first party is to leave Feb. 7, the second Feb. 13.

When furloughs were introduced the newcomer divisions were given the same quotas as veteran outfits, but the situation has been corrected.

The 5th landed in Iceland Sept. 5, 1941, moved to England in August, 1943, for two months, then spent eight months in Ireland and landed in Normandy in July, 1944.

Dutch Volunteers Train in Britain to Fight Japs

EINDHOVEN, Holland, Feb. 4 (AP).—A special Netherlands expeditionary force to fight the Japanese in the Netherlands East Indies is now being formed in liberated Holland. The first group of volunteers already has arrived in Britain for training, the Aneta news agency said today.

British Lower Soldiers' Postal Rate from India

CALCUTTA, India, Feb. 4 (Reuters).—Sweeping postal concessions to British troops of the southeast Asia and Indian command will go into effect immediately. Letters and postcards, including air mail letter cards weighing not more than one ounce, will be taken to Britain by air, postage free. Air mail letters weighing between one ounce and an ounce and a half from India and Burma will cost six annas (twelve cents).

'See You in Berlin,' Yanks Radio from Crippled Fort

LONDON, Feb. 4 (AP).—Several of the American Flying Fortresses crippled over Berlin yesterday headed toward the Oder river to make forced landings behind Russian lines. "Probably be seeing you in Berlin," one radioed.

Squeeze Colmar Pocket.

The battle of southern Alsace appeared nearing its final stages as French and American forces squeezing the Colmar pocket from north and south came within nine miles of a junction. The Germans were fleeing across the Rhine with allied guns speeding them on their way.

The French 1st army with its attached United States divisions was striking swiftly in an attempt to trap elements of four divisions and an armored brigade still believed in the pocket.

It was disclosed that the section of Lt. Gen. Jean de Lattre de Tassigny's army pounding down from the north was now predominantly American.

These forces drove past Ste. Croix, five miles south of Colmar. They were within nine miles of French troops swinging up from the south, who captured a number of towns including Ensisheim, six miles north of Mulhouse, and Cernay, seven miles northwest of the city.

Due east of Colmar the attack had begun on Wolfgantzen, which straddles the highway and main railway over which the Germans are escaping back into the reich.

Planes Lash Nazis.

The village of Biesheim a mile and a half to the east and overlooking the Rhine bridge, had been cleared. Fighter bombers, virtually the only ones able to take to the air on the western front, were lashing at the retreating enemy.

This retreat appeared to be folding up enemy positions in the Vosges foothills farther west, where a French pincer was about 10 miles from closing on strong positions from which the Germans had balked a push to the Rhine since last November.

The United States 7th army in northern Alsace was hammering a stubborn German last stand position in Oberhoffen, 15 miles north of Strasbourg, and to the west in the northern Vosges scored a gain against the enemy in the Bitche salient.

[The allied war bulletin made no mention of British 2d or Canadian 1st army activity, but the German war summary reported that their artillery had smashed British tank forces which tried to break thru the Nazi line south of Roermond. The Germans also said allied tanks had opened an attack on Dunkerque, the French channel port where an enemy garrison has been besieged since August.]

NAZI REPORT ON WEST FRONT.

The German war summary said yesterday:

"In the west our artillery smashed British tank forces which, south of Roermond, tried to break thru our main fighting line.

"At the middle course of the Roer river lively enemy movements continue. Artillery fire, too, increased in violence, so that in this sector a renewal of large scale enemy attacks must be reckoned with.

"Northeast of Monschau enemy attacks were unsuccessful, but to the east of town, after grim fighting, he managed to press back our troops in the region of Schleiden and north therefrom.

"Also in the western fortifications farther south grim fighting developed with attacking American formations which, after slight successes, were brought to a standstill.

"In the area of Bischweiler our troops in a counter-attack drove back the enemy who had advanced. They made prisoners and destroyed a major number of enemy tanks.

5TH ARMY MEETS FIERCE NAZI FIRE NEAR BOLOGNA

ROME, Feb. 4 (AP).—Fifth army troops operating seven and a half miles south of Bologna encountered savage small arms and mortar fire from strongly entrenched German units as drizzling rains fell today along most of the Italian front.

German shelling of 5th army lines and communications increased both south of Bologna and near the west coast. Germar raiding parties attacked a number of 8th army outposts in the Po valley, where the ground was reported thawing.

Eighth army patrols along the Senio river drew heavy fire from the enemy and casualties were inflicted on the Germans in minor engagements in the Apennine foothills south of the Via Emilia.

The weather in northern Italy was so bad yesterday that the only tactical air mission was made by a flight of American Thunderbolts which bombed the Sonico rail yards 30 miles northwest of Lake Garda. Five railway cars were destroyed. In the only other air operations R. A. F. planes hammered the main rail line in central Yugoslavia.

BULLETS MEAN LIVES SAVED; ARMY EXPLAINS

W-G-N to Tell of Worker's Role in Victory.

BY CHARLES BALLENGER.

Army ordnance experts have estimated that one machine gun properly placed on a battle front firing line will save the lives of 10 soldiers. A medium tank at the front can mean life to 40 men.

Army officers explain that these figures are made accurately by means of an old time battle equation familiar to all students of war tactics: men plus material equal objective attained, or victory. If the supply of equipment is inadequate they say, more men must be used to balance the equation.

New Series Over W-G-N.

Because on several occasions during this war the equation has threatened to become unbalanced thru lack of equipment, forcing battle leaders to use men instead of machines, station W-G-N and THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, in coöperation with the army, navy, war agencies, and leading priority war plants, tonight will inaugurate a new series of radio broadcasts designed to show each war worker the direct part he plays in winning victory.

The first broadcast will be aired from W-G-N's main audience studio from 9 to 9:30 p. m. The series will be called America Unlimited, and additional shows will be presented each successive Monday night at the same time.

Tonight's broadcast will sound the keynote for the programs to follow, and will not be concerned with the needs for any particular weapon or other war material.

Worker's Vital Role.

A panorama story of America's growth thru conflict and adversity will be conveyed thru original drama and narrative. Original music and a specially trained chorus will provide background.

On the back page of today's Tribune the vital role of the war worker is shown in a full color picture drawn by Carey Orr, Tribune cartoonist. The picture, enlarged to poster size, will be distributed to war plants.

Preceding the broadcast tonight will be a special program on which Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE and president of W-G-N, will welcome representatives of participating war plants, war agencies, and military services. A special guest will be Capt. Maurice L. Britt, who, with his wife, Nancy, arrived in Chicago last night. Capt. Britt is the first man in this war to win all the top military medals. His story is currently appearing in THE TRIBUNE.

Firms Taking Part Listed.

The musical score for the broadcast was written by Robert Trendler, and the story by Jack La Frandre, who will alternate with Sherman Dryer in writing and producing subsequent programs. Soloist tonight will be Bruce Foote, baritone. He will be supported by a 20 voice chorus and orchestra.

Companies participating in the series include the Republic Steel corporation, Pressed Steel Car company, Ingersoll Steel and Disc division of Borg-Warner corporation, Aluminum Company of America, Electro-Motive division of General Motors, Western Electric company, and the Buda company. Other companies will join the series later.

Cost of the program will be divided as follows: The Tribune company will assume the time costs, W-G-N will produce the shows for nothing, and the participating companies will pay for talent.

Mario Roatta, former commander of Fascist Italian forces in Yugoslavia, for "bestialities" committed in that country. JAPS GOBBLE UP BOGUS PILLS OF PVT. PINKHAM

WITH 6TH ARMY, Luzon, Feb. 4 (AP).—One American and two British prisoners at the Cabanatuan prison camp told today how they manufactured bogus sulfathiazole tablets and sold them to Japanese guards.

Pvt. Winthrop C. Pinkham of Dover, N. H., said the Japanese were eager for the pills because venereal disease was prevalent among them. "We made the pills out of baking soda, plaster of paris, talcum, tooth powder, and corn starch," he said. "We stamped them with an insignia to make them look genuine and sold thousands at 14 to 35 pesos a pill."

He said his confederates were Gunners Stanley A. Deller and Thomas Potter, British prisoners.

F.D.R., CHURCHILL, STALIN MEET IN RUSSIA, REPORT

Begin Parley; Long Session Expected.

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

ANKARA, Turkey, Feb. 4.—President Roosevelt, Premier Stalin, and Prime Minister Churchill have finally begun their long awaited meeting with many of their chief advisers, according to reports today. These reports fixed the site of the historic get-together within the territorial limits of the soviet union.

Altho certain circles claim to have a pretty good idea where the conference is being held it would be inadvisable for security reasons to pinpoint it at this time. It can be said, however, without endangering the lives of the allied leaders, that Turkish quarters believe the Big Three are meeting somewhere in the Black sea area. Local newspapers have been publishing reports under big headlines that the conference is taking place in the soviet union.

Tighten Security Measures.

Security measures here have been considerably tightened since the recent severance by Turkey of relations with the Japanese and the internment of Japan's embassy personnel.

If the meeting is being held in the U. S. S. R. it would mark the second time that Premier Stalin has insisted on bringing Mr. Roosevelt to his doorstep or over the threshhold to confer. For Churchill this is no noveity. The prime minister is no longer an unfamiliar figure within the Kremlin itself.

Some of the meetings may be held aboard a ship flying a non-Russian flag, which would, in a sense, alter diplomatic status. This might fit in with Mr. Roosevelt's and Churchill's love of the sea, at the same time enabling Marshal Stalin to remain close to home to conduct the Russians' military operations at first hand.

All that informed persons here say they actually know is that the big three are really meeting, that the scene is believed to be inside Russia and that the conference is likely to take long because many problems are to be threshed out.

Germany's Fate First Problem.

Certain of these problems are obvious. Among the most immediate is the drafting of a formula under which Germany's unconditional surrender could be activated should the soviet and allied drives bring about a final collapse.

Attached to this is the necessity of allotting spheres for the various allied armies to occupy and the arrangement of methods of so doing.

Regarding military operations, the discussions may center on the Pacific war. It has been widely reported that at the Teheran conference Premier Stalin promised his two major allies that when Germany surrendered the soviet union would join the war against Japan.

It is thought that the meetings will last long because of the insistence of all three leaders that a full understanding be reached and agreements made.

ALLIES FAIL TO GET NEWSMEN INTO ANY BALKANS BUT GREECE

ROME, Feb. 4 (AP).—Public relations officers at allied headquarters said today that prolonged negotiations have failed to gain access for American and British correspondents as a group to any of the Balkan countries except Greece.

In Yugoslavia, Marshal Tito's government permitted the entry of H. D. Harrison of Reuters, who formerly was that news agency's Balkan manager and lived for many years in Belgrade before the war.

Aside from Harrison no American or British correspondents have been permitted officially to go from Italy to Yugoslavia since a press party made a brief trip to Belgrade in November. Tito sent a press officer to Italy to hear allied arguments on behalf of the correspondents but that is as far as he has gone.

The Hoxha regime in Albania declined to discuss the subject, it was learned here.

A similar lack of success was encountered in negotiations for sending correspondents from Italy into Bucharest, Sofia, Ploesti and other Balkan points, even tho American and British officials are participating with the Russians in the allied control commissions for Romania and Bulgaria.

CALL 4 MILLION CITY WORKERS TO AID ON FARMS

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4 [Special].—Farmers will need help at harvest time from at least 4 million urban workers if this year's production goals are to be met, the agriculture department said today in a statement listing anticipated farm labor shortage areas.

Illinois and neighboring midwest states will feel the farm labor pinch in June and July, the department said.

Food Demands Increase.

Help from the cities will be required for the harvesting of fruits, vegetables, and peas in June, it was said, and for these purposes and corn detasseling in July.

Agriculture thruout the nation will have its shortest labor supply in 40 years, the department asserted. An early end to the war in Europe will increase rather than decrease demands upon the country's food supply, it said. A German surrender will bring with it augmented demands for foreign relief feeding, it was said.

Labor Is Taken Away.

The department's statement took no recognition of recent complaints in congress that the Tydings amendment to the selective service act, intended to safeguard essential farm workers from the draft, is being violated. Many instances of farmers selling their live stock because they or their workers have been drafted have added to worries over the year's production.

RELIEF TROOPS A BLESSED SIGHT AFTER 59 DAYS

Company L Leaves Battle for Hard Earned Rest.

(Coming out of the line — how doughboys feel after 59 days at the front is told in this instalment of a series on Company L, 30th infantry, 3d infantry division, by the company's commanding officer. He describes Christmas festivities, and the training program at a "rest camp.")

BY CAPT. MAURICE L. BRITT.

[First soldier to receive the medal of honor, the distinguished service cross, the silver star, and the bronze star in the present war.]

As Told to Carl Wiegman.

[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune.]

We were ragged, dirty, greasy, bearded, and only half conscious when we were relieved by fresh troops on Nov. 16, 1943, at Mount Rotondo, Italy. Our walking wounded trudged along with us. We were the infantry, coming out of the line.

For 59 days we had been at the front. We had just finished nine days of almost constant fighting. Our battalion had taken Mount Rotondo, held it thru a series of counter-attacks, and had broken a section of the Germans' "winter line," which they had expected to hold until Jan. 1.

An End to It All.

Now a fresh, full company of about 200 men moved into the position on the mountain which my Company L had held with 55. For us, it meant an end to 59 nights in foxholes, slit trenches and on the ground; an end to canned rations, an end to bailing out foxholes with helmets, an end to living like rats.

As we straggled to the rear, along with other units of the 3d division, I think we all had only one desire—to get some sleep. From Mount Rotondo we marched about 10 miles back to the town of Pietrovairano, which we had helped to capture a few weeks earlier. There we found the answers to our dreams.

The quartermaster issued fine eight man tents, which we put up in the mud. We built sidewalks out of gravel and crushed rocks. We made bunks out of ammunition crates, covering them with deloused hay. Clean mattress covers, clean clothes, and extra blankets were issued. We fixed up a shower, with the water heated in metal barrels.

Not Much Protection.

Tents are not much protection in cold, windy, rainy weather, but we figured out a way to keep them fairly comfortable. We cut out the ends of dehydrated food cans, fastened them together to make a chimney, and made a kind of stove or fireplace in each tent, where we burned charcoal.

We had hot food for every meal. We had regular sleep. We began to shave every day with hot water, using tables set up for that special purpose. Everything was luxurious. We thought it was swell.

Mail started coming to us regularly. Christmas was approaching, and every mail brought Christmas packages from home. We made elaborate preparations to celebrate the holiday.

There were no company funds, but we took up a collection, and sent a detail to Naples to buy oranges, apples, and nuts. They returned with a jeep load. Another detail went scouting for wine, but found only five gallons at a place where they thought they could buy 1,000 gallons.

Lt. Jack Miller arranged to use the ovens in several Italian homes, where we baked bread, cakes, rolls, and cherry pies. None of the other companies had an officer with such foresight, and our pastries were the envy of the regiment.

One of our men wrangled a cow for our Christmas dinner. There was an army circular forbidding us to buy cows from civilians, but I am afraid that an unnamed miscreant forgot himself. At roll call I asked the company if any of the men were butchers. Four stepped forward and they were assigned to butcher the cow.

Men for Every Job.

That's the way it always was in Company L. We had men who could do anything. All I had to do was to explain the job. Somebody was always able and willing to do it. We even had a man who could speak Arabic.

During these weeks at rest camp our whole outlook on life changed. Sometimes, when we were in the front line, we decided war was simply unendurable. Now, after some rest and good food, we began to think war wasn't so bad after all.

Not that we ever ceased to long for home. Home was the principal topic of conversation. We longed for the usual things about life at home, like going to a movie down at the corner, or eating hamburgers at the kitchen table.

Christmas eve was especially lonesome. We sang carols and other old songs, and felt a little sorry for ourselves. We wondered if we ever would get home.

Christmas morning I was called over to a nearby air field. A Piper Cub plane landed, and out stepped Gen. Clark, commander of the 5th army. They lined me up with eight or 10 other officers who had been promoted. Gen. Clark shook hands with each of us. He handed me the silver bars of a captain and a commission, saying, "Here's a little present for you."

For Christmas dinner the army provided turkey, but there wasn't much of it, so we also had roast beef from our cow. The colonel dined with us, stowing away a generous helping of beef. Then he asked me where we got the beef. I called in Mess Sgt. Curtis of Little Rock, Ark., and passed the buck to him.

"It's Beef, Anyway."

"Where did you get the beef, sergeant? This isn't general issue, is it?" I asked.

The sergeant eyed me coldly.

"Sir," he said. "You know damn well 't ain't."

"Well," said the colonel, "it's beef, anyway."

Some writers take delight in picturing soldiers, especially infantry men, as drunken, lecherous bums, whose only idea when they get liberty is to find liquor and women. There are some soldiers like that, but they are by no means typical of the army.

Not Pantywaists Either.

In all the time I spent with Company L, we never had a single case of venereal disease. There were very few cases in our whole battalion. And if anybody thinks that battalion was composed of pantywaists, they had better consult the Germans.

Naturally we often thought about home. When a man is miserable in a foxhole, if he can let his mind drift away in a reverie that takes him home for a little while, it helps him forget the cold and wet, and and pain and weariness and the smell of death.

Back home, I found people who think army rest camps are places where soldiers lie around all day listening to the radio or reading detective stories. We were barely settled in our elegant quarters when replacement troops arrived to fill our depleted ranks and we started immediately to train them for combat.

Very Little Griping.

This was hard on the men who had just come out of combat, but there was surprising little griping. All the veterans realized that their own lives, as well as the lives of the new men, depended on our working as a good company team.

Lt. Miller lectured the recruits on the history of our regiment, the 30th infantry, starting with the battle of the Marne in World War I., and continuing up to the battle of Mount Rotondo. The latter part of his lectures placed strong emphasis on Company L, which we believe to be the best in the regiment, if not in the entire 3d division and 5th army.

Most of our training was on making a river crossing. We practiced on the Volturno, which was waist deep, cold and swift. Our theory was that we were rehearsing for the crossing of the Rapido river. This theory blew up on New Year's day, 1944, when we got orders to move to an assembly area near Naples.

On Way Back to War.

The weather was bad on the day we left our lovely rest camp. Alternately it snowed and sleeted. The wind blew down some of our tents and ripped others as we were taking them down. But we turned the tents back to the quartermaster with some sadness. We knew we were going back to war.

At the assembly area we started intensive training for a beach landing. It was the most rugged training we ever had. Sometimes we worked 18 hours a day, hitting the beach again and again, with fleets of LCIs. In odd moments we speculated on what country's beaches we were going to invade. Most of us thought it would be France. At least we hoped so.

ADMITS HELPING 2 LOOT HOME OF BENJAMIN JEFFE

Edward W. Jansen, 23, of 724 E. 90th pl., alias Robert Swanson, confessed yesterday, police said, that he is one of three men who ransacked the home of Benjamin Jaffe, president of the Guarantee Insurance company, at 7001 Bennett av., Jan. 15.

He was arrested Saturday night by Detectives Ernest Keen and John Kappel of the stolen automobile detail as he stepped into the automobile which the trio stole from the Jaffe garage after looting the house of jewelry, silverware, and money totaling more than $3,000. The license plates had been removed, but the detectives identified the car by the motor number and lay in wait.

Complaints against Jansen were signed by Jaffe, his wife, Elsie, who was downtown at the time of the robbery, and by the Jaffes' two servants, James and Lola Beason, whom the robbers tied up.

Police said Jansen was paroled from Pontiac reformatory in 1943 after serving a term for automobile theft.

THE LABOR DRAFT.

The house has approved the bill to draft men for industry. Most of the Democrats voted for it and most of the Republicans against. If the senate also approves the measure, the draft boards will be authorized to order men between the ages of 18 and 45 to work in war plants. If any man refuses he can be sent at once into the army provided he can pass the physical examination or he can be fined as much as $10,000 and sent to the penitentiary for as much as five years.

Curiously enough, this measure was opposed not only by the official spokesmen for the CIO and the AFL but also by the National Association of Manufacturers. It isn't often that labor and management are in agreement on legislation, but this time they were. The majority in the house rejected their advice, no doubt because the military authorities insisted that the labor draft was needed to assure adequate supplies for the fighting men. The argument was not persuasive until the Germans broke our lines in Belgium and Luxembourg. The approval of the bill in the house evidences the anxiety which was felt thruout the country in the fortnight which followed the Dec. 16 assault.

It is curious, however, that the house reached its decision long after the battle of the bulge was won. The fear frequently expressed in the fortnight following Dec. 16 that the 1st army would have to be wholly re-equipped was not realized. Meanwhile, too, the Russians have taken the offensive and are closing in on Berlin. The military situation both in Europe and in the Pacific is so much more favorable than it was a month, a year, or two years ago that it is difficult to see why a measure that was not required then is required now.

At best, the labor draft is a dubious expedient. Labor and management are agreed that where labor shortages exist in the war plants the numbers of men required are not large enough to warrant legislation of so sweeping a character. The problem is essentially a local one, they say, and can be met, as it has been met in the past, largely by local effort. Certainly there has been hoarding of man power by the army, the burocracy, and industry; it should be easier to correct these abuses where they exist than to institute a national system of forced labor with all the disorganization and hardship that will go with it.

More especially, there is reason to doubt that the labor so obtained will prove of much value. Men forced to take jobs against their wills are not likely to be efficient at their tasks. The drafted soldier can take pride in his uniform and the traditions of his service but these incentives will not stir the drafted laborer. The morale in many plants is none too high and it will surely not be raised by the presence of a group of discontented men ordered to work there on pain of five years in Leavenworth and a $10,000 fine.

PRIVILEGES OF OFFICE.

The Export-Import bank is a government agency that has been in existence since 1934. Its original purpose was to aid in financing the foreign trade of the United States. In 1940, in a bill increasing the limit on the loans this institution might have outstanding at one time, congress authorized the Export-Import bank "to make loans to any governments, their central banks, or any acceptable banking institutions, for the purpose of assisting in the development of the resources, the stabilization of the economies, and the orderly marketing of the products of the countries of the western hemisphere."

In May of 1942 the Export-Import bank gave a revolving credit of $25,000,000 to the International Telephone and Telegraph company. This company is in the telephone and telegraph business on a world scale, with especially important interests in Spain and Argentina. It is also, thru its subsidiaries, a big operator of cables, radio-telegraph and radio-telephone facilities; its high rates severely limited the amount of news that could be transmitted. The loan was on a 4 per cent basis and was to enable the company to buy in the open market below par 4½ and 5 per cent debentures which were in the hands of the public.

It is difficult to see how this loan fell within the permitted functions of the Export-Import bank. Helping International Telephone and Telegraph to save some interest money was not facilitating the international movement of commodities. The company is not a government nor a banking institution. It was a most remarkable transaction, indeed.

What makes the transaction all the more remarkable is an announcement made in New York on Jan. 18 that Warren Lee Pierson, president of the Export-Import bank, had been made president of the American Cable and Radio corporation, big subsidiary of International Telephone and Telegraph. Mr. Pierson is remaining, for the time being, as head of the Export-Import bank.

The Roosevelt administration often has referred to the fact that Mr. Morgenthau as secretary of the treasury is prohibited by law from buying war bonds, as he is the one who fixes the prices at which the securities are offered and the rates of interest. But this is not a true example of public morality under the New Deal. Mr. Leo Crowley, one of the President's closest advisers, has remained as head of the federal deposit insurance administration for many years, altho he has been president of the Standard Gas company, which has had many issues to be adjudicated by federal agencies. And now Mr. Pierson, who loaned money to the Mackay Radio and Commercial cable interests, has been made head of those interests but stays on as head of the government agency which made the loan.

CITIZENS' RIGHTS.

There is talk of including in the peace treaties a declaration of the rights of man. The thought is that a government which intends to go on the warpath will start by suppressing all opposition at home. The press and the radio will be enslaved in order to fill the people's minds with falsehoods about neighboring countries. Summary punishment without a fair trial will await any citizen who dares to protest. Churches which might become centers of resistance will be closed.

There is much to be said for this assumption and much to be said, therefore, for imposing the liberty of the individual on the nations. Whether it can be done is, of course, another question. It may be doubted that Russia, which denies liberty to its own people, will join in forcing it on the Germans, but perhaps the Russians will not object.

If something like this is attempted, it is to be hoped that the framers of the treaties will not try to improve on the American Bill of Rights, but will embody it as it stands in our Constitution. Likewise, there should be the explicit statement that these rights cannot be revoked or suspended under any circumstances, in war or in peace, no matter how serious the national crisis may appear. Finally, the later amendments forbidding slavery should be incorporated.

Two reasons for following this course are apparent. One is that the American Bill of Rights is the only one which has ever amounted to anything as a standing protection to a people against oppression and misrule; the other is that the meaning of our Bill of Rights has been tested again and again in the courts and the decisions of the Supreme court stand as interpretations and precedents.

Various substitute bills of rights have been suggested from time to time but their authorship is more or less suspect. People who talk of including freedom from want and fear in a statement of rights can hardly be unaware that these are more or less unrealizable goals and that to state them constitutes an invitation to governmental license rather than a discouragement to it.

Adoption of the American Bill of Rights as a practical and reasonable limitation on the scope of governmental authority will at least show an honest intention to protect the future against its Hitlers.

AIR LINE COMPETITION.

An important question will soon be decided by the senate commerce committee. It is whether the United States is to be represented in international commercial flying by a number of private lines competing with each other and with foreign carriers or whether all the traffic is to go to a "community" company in which all lines able to participate would be represented.

Sen. Bailey, chairman of the commerce committee, has not been reassuring in indicating his preference. He is on record as saying that the American service must be "something in the nature of a monopoly" and should be under strict government control. He has taken a position for something just short of government ownership and has said that he won't advocate that if other means can be found.

The senator need not look far to find other and more desirable means. About a dozen companies have already signified their desire to provide post-war trans-Atlantic air service between the United States and Europe, Africa, and Asia. Many of them have already made public their intended rates, which are reasonable but which they think are sufficient to enable them to operate profitably.

Examiners for the civil aeronautics board, which is considering applications for authorizations to establish overseas service, have come out in favor of the principle of competition. They have so far approved the application of one new company in addition to the two already operating. It is significant that the principal agitation for a community company has come from the best established line, which has enjoyed a virtual monopoly to date.

Overseas commercial aviation should be upon the basis of competition among all private lines able to offer service. This will insure more and better service. It will reduce rates and encourage technical advance. A monopoly tends toward bad service, high prices, and no progress. The "flag" line is a conception of British and other foreign aviation interests which are afraid of the hazards of unrestricted competition and which would welcome nothing more than a cartel organization in the aviation field.

LABEL OF THE WEEK.

The CIO is actively seeking support for the confirmation of Henry Wallace, which is expectable and its privilege. It is putting pressure on employers of CIO leaders to sign pre-cooked encomiums of Henry, which is also all right, if the employers are in a suicidal mood. These indorsements, employers are instructed, are to be sent to the Business Men's Committee for Wallace, in Washington, and that's really something.

If that one works, Earl Browder's lieutenants in the PAC will probably set up a Business Men's Committee to Sovietize America.

SOYBEANS PREFERRED.

[New York Sun.]

Because automobile license tags in Illinois this year are of a plastic made from soybeans many are chewed up by dogs. Springfield motorists are filing complaints. These are not likely to discourage chemical conversion of the nation's soybean crop, which exceeds 200,000,000 bushels a year. If farmers who have increased their acreage have doubts of the future value of that raw material, they need only consider the innumerable uses to which soybean plastics are put in warfare.

Addressing the American Tariff league last June, Wheeler McMillen, head of the National Farm Chemurgic council, said: "More genuine and effective agricultural adjustment was accomplished during the last 12 years in the corn belt thru the addition of the soybean crop than by all the laws adopted by the New Deal or by all the millions paid out from the federal treasury." The dogs of Springfield, Ill., are by no means the most appreciative beneficiaries of one of the most profitable scientific developments in modern agriculture.

C'EST LA GUERRE.

On Christmas, 1870, the 99th day of the siege of Paris in the Franco-Prussian war, Voisin's, a restaurant of high tradition in gastronomy, issued a bill of fare that has become a collector's item. It offered the complete repertory of a sumptuous dinner: Hors d'œuvre, potages, entrées, rôtis, entremets, dessert, with seven wines, most of them "noble." But the list of edibles was astonishing, for the dishes included stuffed donkey's head, elephant consommé, roast camel, jugged kangaroo, roast ribs of bear, haunch of wolf, truffled antelope, and "cats flanked with rats."

* * *

Was it a grim jest to enhance a meager dinner with the sauce of laughter? Perhaps; and yet there is convincing evidence that such bizarre food was eaten in the beleaguered city. Paris was almost at the point of starvation, and the animals of the menagerie at the Jardin des Plantes had been slaughtered and sold at fantastic prices.

* * *

"An Englishman in Paris," published anonymously in 1892, but known to have been written by a journalist named Albert D. Vandam, who was educated in Paris, gives the background of the Voisin menu, whether fact or fake, in these words:

"I have eaten the flesh of elephants, wolves, cassowaries, porcupines, bears, rats, cats, and horses. I did not touch dog's meat knowingly. The proprietor of the English butcher shop, M. Debos, who is not an Englishman at all, supplied most of these strange dishes, for he bought nearly all the animals from the zoölogical garden at tremendous prices. The elephants were sold to M. Debos for 27,000 francs."

* * *

"Diary of a Besieged Resident in Paris," written by Henry Labouchere, English journalist and politician, confirms the story, and supplies the names of the slaughtered elephants—Castor and Pollux. The flesh of their trunks was sold at almost $10 a pound.

* * *

The wines at Voisin's on that dreadful Christmas are worthy of note: They were sherry, Chateau La Tour Blanche, 1861; Chateau Palmer, 1864; Mouton Rothschild, 1846; Romanée Conti, 1858; Bellenger Frappé, and a port of 1827.

THIS IS MY HOME.

This is my home—these spacious fields
Of tasseled gold for men to reap;
These prairies, wide and beautiful,
Across whose reach the great winds sweep.

This is my home, where little towns
Bear sturdy names like Kinderhook,
Nokomis, or Dundee, and wear,
However small, a hardy look.

These are my acres with blue miles
Of Mississippi on the west,
And, to the east, the long, bright lake
With freight of mines upon her breast.

My acres, where misshapen trees
Tell of red feet which passed this way,
And silos of the hands that came
To hew, and clear, and clasp to pray.

This, too, is mine—Chicago spires
That cast their likeness in the lake,
The spires of a thousand sounds
Which mold such songs as giants make;

The city wherein man's full strength
Combines with ardor of a boy.
All these I carry in my heart;
They are my home, my Illinois!

State Street's Friendly Lions.

The Art institute's lions [Jan. 16] were preceded in Chicago's folklore by a pair of lions that stood in front of Gossage's, on State st., in the 1880s. This dry goods store, from which Carson Pirie's descends, was on the west side of the street, just south of Washington.

I occasionally sat on one of these lions while my mother was shopping inside. From my perch I could see up and down State st. At the Randolph corner was Central Music hall, and I remember wondering how it happened that a small boy of my own age was playing the piano there [1888]. His name was Josef Hofmann. When my mother came out of the store she would take me to a matinee in the Chicago Opera house—"Aladdin or the Wonderful Lamp," or "The Crystal Slipper." H. B. H.

Running Down the Ostrich.

For the origin of the fable about the ostrich that hides its head in the sand to escape pursuers, see Pliny's "Natural History," as translated by Philemon Holland, book X, chapter 1:

"But the veriest fools they be of all others; for as high as the rest of their body is, yet if they thrust their head and neck once into any shrub or bush, and get it hidden, they think then they are safe enough, and that no man seeth them." Earle J. W. Fink.

G. H. writes: "I am 30, married, and have one child. I enlisted in the army in March, 1943, as a VOC [volunteer officer candidate]. Because the army had acquired all the officers it needed, a bunch of us were discharged in July, 1943, just before graduation and without having requested it. When I first came out of the army I was classified 1-C; twice thereafter I was classified 2-B, the present one expiring Feb. 24, this year. I wrote my local board asking why I was not entitled to 1-C. It wrote that LBM 77-C excluded VOCs from 1-C classification. True?"

Yes, local board memo 77-C, amended Dec. 7, 1944, paragraph 3, included men released "from army officer training programs" with other men released from cadet, midshipmen, V-12, V-5, V-6, V-7, and other training programs leading to a commission as being subject to reclassification or induction.

N. A. asks: "How do men between 18 and 26 stand in this work or fight order if they have been submitted for induction and found fit only for limited service?"

If they are "regularly engaged in" war production they should be classified 2-B [L] or [F]; if "regularly engaged" in national health, safety, or interest, they should be in 2-A [L] or [F]. If they have been so classified and left employment for which they had been so classified, a local board may submit them for induction despite being below certain physical standards. This also is true at present for men up to 38.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

by Dr. Irving S. Cutter

[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune.]

THE PANCREAS—MAINTAINING ITS POWER.

FEW of us have occasion to consider or to think much about the pancreas. Nevertheless, the gland is highly important in the economy of the body. It lies below the stomach and extends from the spleen, on the left side of the upper abdomen, to the duodenum on the right.

The apparatus produces powerful enzymes which dissolve food. They are poured into the first portion of the bowel and mingle with the secretions from the liver. Together, these two structures [pancreas and liver] provide many of the chemicals so necessary for digestion.

Within recent years we have learned much about the behavior of the highly specialized cells which make up the pancreas. In addition to their other duties, they secrete a substance called "insulin," which controls the level of sugar in the blood. The material is absorbed directly into the circulation.

It is clear, therefore, why it is essential that this organ shall not become inflamed. Allow infection to gain the upper hand and the structure may become swollen, irritated, or lose some of its circulation. In this latter event, many cells may die because the blood vessels which supply them have become clogged.

There are probably many more cases of pancreatitis [inflammation] than we realize. The difficulty is that the chief symptom—acute pain—is mistaken for something else. Trouble within the liver, the gall bladder, or even a gastric upset may be blamed. The site of distress is usually in the "pit of the stomach." Most patients will remark that the paroxysms bore straight thru to the back, sometimes radiating to the chest. This again explains why the whole matter may be misunderstood as the heart or the coronary arteries may be thought to be at fault. Seizures may be intermittent. Ofttimes the victim will become comfortable within a half hour or so, only to experience a return of the agony.

Attacks of this sort may come but once in a lifetime. On the other hand, they are likely to exhibit return engagements every few months. Fortunately, we have an excellent test for pancreatic disease. We can examine the vital fluid for the presence of ferments and, if the reading is higher than normal, we may assume that all is not well.

An acute bout does not call for surgery except in rare instances. The chances are that the symptoms will subside. The main thing is to provide prompt relief from pain and dramatic cures have been effected with a single dose of a potent narcotic—for example, morphine. For the time being, the sufferer can be starved. In other words, food calls for activity on the part of the gland and may bring on a fresh siege. But when we encounter an abscess or necrosis [due to loss of circulation], surgical drainage will be demanded.

Just what causes these disorders is not known. It may be that germladen bile has entered the main duct or that the channel has become obstructed in some other fashion. Prevention lies in the consumption of moderate meals which will not place too great a burden upon the edible-dissolving machinery. In addition, we can give immediate attention to all signs which point to disturbances of the gall bladder or the liver.

MOUTH LESIONS.

D. P. writes: Is leucoplakia serious?

REPLY.

Not as a rule but the disease should not be neglected. The whitish or silvery patches that appear on the tongue or other areas within the mouth should be watched for spread and increasing hardness.

TWO.

S. T. writes: Is there more than one type of diabetes?

REPLY.

Yes. The most common form is diabetes mellitus. In the insipidus variety, no sugar appears in the urine and the cause is thought to lie within the fourth ventricle of the brain.

LACKS CO-ORDINATION.

T. R. writes: What is meant by an ataxic gait?

REPLY.

The victim of ataxia totters and stumbles as he walks. In other words, muscle coördination is disturbed.

FACIAL PARALYSIS.

M. N. writes: What is Bell's palsy?

REPLY.

Paralysis of the seventh, or facial nerve on one side. Exposure to cold is thought to be responsible. Fortunately, recovery is the rule.

Report from the Philippines.

Life on American soil in the Philippines as of Jan. 20:

"The ensuing days are rugged; it is all new, all confusion. Many men. Many problems. The food, however, becomes much improved. Coffee is superb. You walk thru mud, very much mud. You meet the natives. The girls and women are more than anxious to do your laundry. You have heard the Americans are generous, as who hasn't? Clothing is scarce for them. The Japs took practically everything they had. But has American a mattress cover, a sheet, a something for their baby, an undershirt, perhaps? You see them at first hand, you see the miserable hovels, according to our standards, in which they live. You become familiar with new money. You gather Jap souvenir money and pass some on to your friends.

"You meet all kinds of new bugs, curious and miserable creatures. You camp next to a graveyard. You discuss all kinds of things with natives who look 12 and actually are twice that age. You see so many small people, and by comparison we loom extremely large. You see life in its simplest form. You wonder sometimes if the Americans ever accomplished anything during their tenure in the Philippines. You wonder about many things. You wonder about your mail, and a few of us are dispatched some miles away to look into the problem. There you encounter more difficulty, more mud, more confusion, more soldiers, more of everything, but finally after painstaking labor and much front you hit on something, nothing more than a clew, but something. You run this down, and discover about 25 letters for the entire unit are at hand, but that many sacks are some thousand miles away. Dispatches are sent, and you cross your thumbs. Bang, on New Year's night, four bags arrive. The mail orderly has hundreds of assistants, and mail ranged from mid-September to mid-December. Every one feels a little better, but where are the other 60 sacks? Where are the packages?

"Eventually, as always, the mail comes in — in swoops, in dribbles, 64 bags of packages, some in pretty good shape, some unrecognizable. Some never arrived. Most of us glad, some disappointed. One man receives a hodge-podge package ripped open but finds in its depths a beautiful wedding ring. A bottle of spirited water comes thru excellent camouflage—fruitcake —and there is celebration. With the cookies, cakes, cheese, and whatnot, come the crawlers, ants and all their relatives. You wonder whether it is wise to send homemade cookies, cakes, and soft candies. My answer is no.

"There are the inevitable questions: I know so and so sent me 10 packages. Where are they. Well, where are they? Considering the many handlings our mail goes thru due to changes in plans, we fare well. Mail sometimes arrives so water soaked it is necessary to burn a whole truck of it. What else is there to do? Would you rather read, or try to read, a horribly run-together letter which you could not understand than not receive it at all? It's a personal matter.

"After a short stay at the graveyard, we move to what we hope may be our permanent site — the before of a before and after picture. Mud, mud, everywhere. Rain and more rain. Very promising and very faithful until March. Roads are laid out, crude structures and big tents go up, the coffee urns are set up, the galley and mess hall are started, big shovels start digging, water is piped, wires are strung, and another camp is in the making. As I write, 10:15 p. m., the bulldozers are busy, portable lighting units are in evidence, and the road is being put thru right beneath my eyes—all this thru minor jungle. We now have big tents with wooden decks and some of us have houseboys.

"Things are getting into shape. You learn at first hand the tremendous job it is to run a war, a modern war, an American war, a successful war. A telephone was installed yesterday, an inter-camp system gets underway tomorrow, we'll have ice cream Sunday, but the sauerkraut and Vienna sausage continue! We are all in good health, men over 42 are applying for discharge, and every one of us hopes to get home this year."

CHECK-OFF FOR CHURCH DUES?

Evanston, Ill., Feb. 2.—Your editorial on the decision rendered by Judge Philip L. Sullivan in the Montgomery Ward case is most timely. It seems to me, however, that you have entirely overlooked the real underlying cause of the dispute between Ward's and the union, which both the union and the government sought to tiptoe past, but which Sewell Avery emphasized. I refer to the two un-American demands of the union — maintenance of union membership and the check-off of union dues. There can be no doubt that if Ward's had submitted to these two demands there would have been no strike. Not until the present administration in Washington came into power has a labor union had the effrontery to impose such demands on an employer.

Labor unions have repeatedly demonstrated that when they are in the saddle they can be far more overbearing and tyrannical than the most hard-boiled employer. Now, they have no more right to impose such conditions on an employer than my church has to insist that my employer check off my church dues; and, also, that he fire me in the event that I withdraw from the church. ARTHUR D. FOYER.

BIG PACKAGES, SMALL CONTENTS.

Chicago, Jan. 18.—Talk about paper shortage. If the government really wanted to effect a reduction, let them enforce a law that makes it compulsory that every carton of package goods be filled or reduced to the actual size of its contents. The same should apply to anything sold in package form.

This would not only save paper board but would also give the public a break. You think you are getting a good sized package at times, only to find upon opening the carton that it actually is from 20 to 30 per cent short. I recently purchased a bottle of hair tonic. When I got home I was surprised when I pulled out a bottle about half the size of the container. It doesn't make sense. A. J. FRETT.

WHAT WAS YOUR OUTFIT, BUDDY?

EXCHANGE GYPS SOLDIERS.

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 27.—My boy writes from Belgium Nov. 27 that they are charged 2½ cents for one Belgian franc. According to Whitaker's British Almanac of 1944, a belga [20 francs] was worth 16.85 cents. Therefore nearly two-thirds of their pay is being taken away from our boys. A dish of ice cream seems to sell for 37 francs, or about 93 cents.

Who gets the graft in this case?

VETERAN, WORLD WAR I.

LIKE A CHINESE BOX.

Chicago, Jan. 29.—You can tell the administration to cut out bureaus and keep on telling them until Gabriel blows his horn and it won't do any good. Instead, why not tell them to create another bureau—the coördinating bureau of the bureaus. This bureau to be the clearing house of all the bureaus and the issuing bureau of all edicts, and hold it responsible for all edicts, and give it the power to eliminate any bureau that in its judgment is superfluous. CHAS. T. FORSTER.

NO CEILING ON MAIL RATES.

Chicago, Jan. 12.—Are we to consider the postoffice department as something existing in a world apart from the discipline and sacrifice that is urged upon the citizenry in general? The OPA prevents business people from raising prices. Yet the postoffice has increased the price of a special delivery letter to be delivered here in Chicago from 12 cents to 16 cents, which is exactly 33⅓ per cent. Not long ago the price of a first class letter delivered in Chicago was increased from 2 cents to 3 cents. This is only a penny, it is true, but it is a 50 per cent price raise. Would the OPA permit a private business a similar increase?

To make it worse the proponents of government in business add insult to injury by telling us with glee how much profit the postoffice is making. TED LEITZELL.

NEW WORK FOR BLOCK WARDENS.

Chicago, Feb. 1.—Tonight begins the nation-wide blackout of all outdoor lighting, and has any one given any thought to what might develop in our neighborhoods after dark? What added protection will be given the citizens of our city who find it necessary to venture forth after dark? Would it be impossible to again recruit our block wardens and other workers to patrol their respective areas between sundown and, say, 1 a. m.? W. W. AHLGRIM, Austin Community Boy Scout Chairman.

WE SHOULD IMPROVE HIS PROPERTY.

Chicago, Jan. 29.—I know from the opposition papers that the majority of errors charged against our present national administration are caused by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, but I believe you went a bit too far in building two additional stories on Harold Ickes' State street property just to cause him trouble with the tax authorities. H. J. W.

MR. R.'S FOR KEEPS.

Barrington, Ill., Jan. 30.—Today Mr. Roosevelt tells us he needs Mr. Wallace and we need him. Why, then, didn't he keep him when he had him as Vice President? I am sure the rest of us will make the supreme sacrifice and give him back to Mr. Roosevelt for personal use only. E. WALL.

CITY-STATE PACT TO SPEED WAR ON BLIGHTED AREAS

Bills for Slum Clearance in Legislature.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 4.—Rapid advances on two fronts against blighted areas were predicted today because of the agreement of Gov. Green and Mayor Kelly of Chicago on specific bills awaiting the "go" signal in the legislature.

Each approved the other's contribution toward solution of the old and growing problem of city deterioration. It has been held that unless the blight is checked the exodus to the suburbs will wreck the tax base upon which all city government is based.

Kelly pledged his backing to Green's bill to permit Illinois insurance companies to invest up to 10 per cent of assets in slum clearance. This would be done under the recently validated neighborhood redevelopment corporation act.

Supports Kelly Measure.

Green will support the mayor's measure to give city governments their own weapon against blight. Cities armed with the legislation could set standards for housing. Substandard dwellings could be purchased with city funds, directly or by condemnation proceedings in court. Unimproved land also could thus be acquired if "necessary or appropriate for the rehabilitation or redevelopment of any area blighted by substandard buildings."

Any of the property so obtained could be held for public purchases —Kelly talks of a park in every one of Chicago's 50 wards, for example —or sold or leased to private companies for new housing projects. The last clause keys the measure into the neighborhood redevelopment corporation plan.

Agree to Changes.

Promoters of the airport authority bill today declared their eagerness to support any amendments which might make it immediately acceptable to Kelly and hence to Chicago Democrats in the legislature.

"We think the bill is now perfectly usable for Chicago," said Hugh Dobbs, Springfield corporation counsel and drafter of the measure. "If leaders want certain amendments for Chicago we can change it to suit.

"But we want to get the bill passed quickly with an emergency clause so that it may have a test of basic features by the Illinois Supreme court before the legislature ends its session June 30. We want that chance to make any necessary corrections during the present session."

Dobbs said Chicago can be excluded from the bill's provisions if Kelly desires, and then put back in after the court test. Any amendments to make possible the bill's application to a lake front airport for Chicago can be in now or later, he said.

Both the senate and house will reconvene Tuesday.

HEARING TODAY IN STABBING AT HINES HOSPITAL

Robert Triplette, 22, of Chicago, a Negro, will be arraigned before the United States commissioner today on a charge of assault on a government reservation, as the outgrowth of a stabbing Saturday in Hines Memorial hospital.

The stabbing is reported to have followed a washroom quarrel between Triplette, a discharged soldier, and a former medical corps private named Warren, both of whom were patients in the hospital.

Upon leaving the washroom, an investigation by Spencer Drayton, head of the Chicago office of the federal bureau of investigation disclosed, Triplette struck Warren on the head with some instrument. Another patient, William T. Strader, 22, of Washington, D. C., came to Warren's aid, whereupon Triplette is alleged to have stabbed Strader four times with a knife. A knife was found on the ground outside that portion of the hospital where the quarrel took place.

Maryland Governor Urges Repeal of 'Jim Crow' Law

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 4 (AP).—Repeal of Maryland's 40 year old "Jim Crow" transportation law was urged today by Gov. O'Conor. In a letter to Chairman Joseph P. Healy of the commission for study of problems affecting the colored population, he asked the commission to give a formal expression on a legislative bill to repeal the law restricting travelers on state transportation routes.

THE QUESTION.

What experience that you had as a candidate fireman amuses you?

WHERE ASKED.

THE ANSWERS.

Ed Enright, 416 E. 74th st.—The first night I was on watch a company went out and I thought we were supposed to follow it. I rang the bell at 3 a. m. As the men were sliding down the pole, I realized they didn't follow that company, so I stood there and yelled "Fire drill!" They didn't think it was funny at the time.

Charles Stetcher, 7155 Talcott av. —While I was asleep the other firemen tied a rope around my bed and dropped the other end thru the shoot to the first floor. Seven of them pulled on the rope. When I woke up my bed was moving and two other beds were sliding across the floor. I thought the building had collapsed.

John Leonard, 2988 Milwaukee av. —An experience that frightened me at the time amuses me now. I had an awful fear of great height. The second day I was in training we had to climbs ladders just to get used to being in high, precarious places. I got over being scared in a hurry, and I no longer have that fear.

William McDermott, 4222 N. Ashland av.—In addition to training, a candidate has to go thru a certain period of persecution by the firemen. They play all sorts of pranks, and it's up to the victim to be a good sport about it. Once they turned my coat inside out and I put it on and couldn't get it buckled shut.

Lt. E. Valiquet, 1355 W. 90th st.—I don't think there's a fireman who hasn't gotten "short bunkered." When we go to bed at night our pants are folded into our boots, so we put them both on at the same time. While I was asleep they cut the bottoms off the legs and I put them on in a hurry. I went to the fire in short pants.

Bud Mickle, 1329 Winnemac av.—My clothes were on the back end of the truck. The driver pulled out to get gasoline and put my clothes inside the cab because it was raining. An alarm came in and I went to the fire not properly dressed. I couldn't find my coat. After the fire, I was kidded about being an onlooker.

Fire Kills 3 in Akron Federal Housing Unit

Akron, O., Feb. 4 (AP).—Three children burned to death today when fire destroyed a south side federal housing unit. William Hipscher, 16, his sister, Gilda, 17, and her girl friend, Patricia Jewell, 15, were found dead in the ashes of the house. Fred Hipscher, 47, and his wife, Alberta, 39, were reported in fair condition at City hospital.

COLD WAVE DUE; FREEZING RAIN SNARLS ROADS

No Prospect of Early Thaw Sighted.

Highway traffic was paralyzed in the middle west, walking was made hazardous and public utility wires were endangered yesterday by a freezing rain that formed a coat of ice which was covered later by snowfall. The weather bureau predicted a cold wave with no prospects of a thaw for several days.

Motorists who ventured onto the slick pavement found their cars sliding against curbs and other automobiles. At least 54 persons suffered broken bones or lacerations because of icy streets. Evanston police reported an automobile accident an hour during the day.

Many of the trucking companies canceled their trips. Highway department workers in Illinois, Iowa, Wisconsin, Indiana, and Michigan were sanding hills and curves where most of the driving difficulties occurred. Two bus runs between Elgin and Rockford were canceled yesterday morning.

The Chicago elevated lines reported a few delays caused by ice forming on the power rail. Thirty trucks of the Chicago Motor Coach company, spreading a mixture of sand and salt, began patroling route streets at 7 a. m. When the Sunday bus runs began at 9:30 a. m. most of the danger spots had been removed altho drivers were under instructions to drive slowly.

In Lake county, Indiana, at least six fires occurred in power poles when the ice caused short circuits.

The Illinois Bell Telephone company reported no difficulties in this state but said that ice caused trouble in states to the west.

The Chicago Motor club advised travelers that highways were in dangerous condition from Des Moines, Ia., to the Pennsylvania state line, and from Madison and Milwaukee, Wis., to Indianapolis, Ind., and St. Louis, Mo.

Improvement in the highway condition will have to depend on evaporation and breaking and removal of the ice by traffic, Weatherman H. L. Jacobson said. The temperature will not go above 20 today and will fall to 5 above tonight, he said.

Added to yesterday's weather bill was the unusual phenomenon of winter lightning and thunder along parts of the north shore. It was caused by vertical currents in which warm air rises from the surface and is replaced by colder air, Jacobson said.

Woman Raped in Club; Police Hunt Five Men

Police yesterday were seeking five men who dragged a 38 year old woman into a rear room of the Blue Ace Social and Athletic club, 1551 Mohawk st., and raped her. The woman was found near the club by a motorist, who took her to Henrotin hospital.

MANILA IS MAYWOOD

Manila is more than a military victory—more than a city reconquered. It's a monument, a symbol. It's as American as a suburb, it's as near and dear as Maywood itself—as any other American community.

It's a monument to the courage, the sacrifice of a group of Americans—many of them Maywood boys, who fought their gallant delaying action at Corregidor.

It's a symbol that stands for American democracy ... because the people of Manila believed in that democracy. It's the proof of an abiding faith in America—no Japanese propaganda could undermine that faith.

It's a suburb—it's part of America; American in its thinking and its beliefs. Because of all these things Manila is Maywood. It's America's belief in freedom. It's a symbol of all we're fighting for—

CANADA'S DRAFT POLICY AT STAKE IN VOTING TODAY

McNaughton Seeks Seat in By-Election.

OWEN SOUND, Ont., Feb. 4 (AP).—Prime Minister M. L. Mackenzie King's compromise conscription policy will be judged directly by the people for the first time tomorrow in the by-election in which Defense Minister Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton [Liberal] is seeking a seat in parliament.

The prime minister won a 2-1 vote of confidence in parliament last December on his policy of sending abroad limited numbers of Canada's drafted home army to fill depleted infantry ranks in the dominion's volunteer army. Tomorrow, however, will bring the first appraisal of the policy directly by the electorate.

Altho other issues are involved, including the popularity of the socialistic CCF [Coöperative Commonwealth Federation], the by-election campaign has pivoted mainly and bitterly around the conscription question.

Many Issues Involved.

In addition to Canada's future man power program, the dissolution of the present parliament and the date of the dominion's forthcoming general election also hinge upon the outcome of the balloting by the 23,000 members of this relatively remote rural community.

Gen. McNaughton and his two opponents are contesting a seat in a parliament which may never meet. If the defense minister is defeated, Prime Minister King is expected to dissolve parliament at an early date without a further session. If McNaughton wins the seat, for which the government arranged the by-election, King may summon a short session for enacting routine measures for the coming year.

Has Two Opponents.

The defense minister is opposed by Garfield Case, a former mayor of Owen Sound, on the Progressive Conservative ticket, and by Air Vice Marshal A. Earl Godfrey, member of an industrial firm, the CCF candidate.

Liberals had hoped for McNaughton's election by acclamation. The Conservatives said McNaughton's election was immaterial, that the war effort and Canada's reënforcements overseas must go on regardless. The CCF position calls for mobilization of man power, wealth, and industry in the war effort.

The campaign was highlighted by charges from John Bracken, Progressive Conservative leader, that reluctant draftees for overseas duty had thrown rifles and ammunitions overboard en route to Europe and that the government was not filling reënforcement requirements.

FIRE DAMAGES B-29 PARTS UNIT OF DODGE PLANT

A stubborn fire, discovered in the roof of a heavy forge shop of the Dodge Chicago plant near 74th st. and Pulaski rd. at 4:05 p. m. yesterday, was brought under control at midnight. Commissioner Corrigan directed the fire fighters. Parts for B-29 Super Fort bomber engines are made in the shop.

The cause of the fire was not disclosed, and no explanation was made of difficulties encountered by firemen in extinguishing the fire in the two block long factory.

A spokesman said some equipment and material were damaged. He added it had not been determined whether the fire would interfere with production, which officials were attempting to maintain. Employes were requested to report for work today at their regular shift starting hour.

Reporters were not permitted to enter the Dodge plant grounds, and cover the fire.

Flying Milkmen Serve Snowbound Dairy Farm

Batavia, N. Y., Feb. 4 (AP).—Pilots flying planes equipped with skis today carried three tons of feed to a snowbound farmer, Edward Maljeweski, and then flew 50 cans of milk from the farm to a market pickup point. The plight of the farmer, out of feed and unable to market his milk, was called to the attention of state police who arranged for the flight.

"But, Mother, won't they think it's awfully funny if we just stay here till the rain's over, without buying anything?"

2,322 MORE MEN NEEDED IN HEAVY TIRE INDUSTRIES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.—A drive to obtain man power for peak production of truck and bus tires has resulted in a net gain of 3,614 workers since November, but 2,322 more workers are needed in the next four weeks, James F. Clark, director of the WPB rubber bureau, said today in a statement.

Clark said 1,500 of the new workers are soldiers on 90 day furloughs, and unless the furloughs are extended the recruiting drive will have to be extended to obtain replacements if production is to be maintained at the desired rate.

Tire production increased commensurate with the increase in man power between Nov. 18 and Jan. 20, and there was a marked decrease in absenteeism, showing that "employes realize the present urgent need of the armed forces for tires," Clark said.

SCOUTS TO MARK 35TH BIRTHDAY; EYES ON WORLD

Boy Scout week which begins Thursday will be celebrated by Boy Scouts of America in Chicago and thruout the nation with special stress laid on the organization's slogan "Scouts of the world—brothers together." The national council of B. S. A. said this theme was selected because there are unmistable evidences that scouting this year will find rebirth in nation after nation.

Since Feb. 8, 1910, when the organization was founded 12 million men and boys have been in scouting. Today's active enrollment consists of 1,800,000 cubs, scouts, senior scouts, and volunteer leaders.

Sunday, Feb. 11, has been designated as boy scout Sunday and in Chicago special services will be held in churches of many denominations to mark the event.

During the week exhibits demonstrating scout handicraft and skills acquired thru scout training will be on display in store windows.

DALE CARNEGIE

in the MURAL ROOM of the MORRISON HOTEL

79 W. MADISON ST., between Dearborn and Clark

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 6, at 8 P. M.

DALE CARNEGIE

Author of "How to Win Friends and Influence People"

Dale Carnegie, through the Dale Carnegie Institute, has trained more business men and women to talk effectively than any other living man. During the past 32 years, more than 50,000 men and women have profited by Dale Carnegie courses in New York, Philadelphia, Washington, Chicago, Boston, London and Paris. Some of the most famous men in the nation have been trained by the Dale Carnegie Institute.

12 THINGS THIS TRAINING WILL HELP YOU DO...

1. PREPARE FOR POST WAR LEADERSHIP.
2. THINK ON YOUR FEET and speak extemporaneously before business conferences, clubs, organizations, dinners.
3. DEVELOP COURAGE AND SELF-CONFIDENCE. Destroy fear, cure an inferiority complex.
4. INCREASE YOUR POISE, polish and personal force both in business interviews and before groups.
5. "SELL" YOURSELF, YOUR SERVICES, your product, your enthusiasms.
6. WIN MORE FRIENDS by increasing your knowledge of practical psychology, your skill in human relations.
7. IMPROVE YOUR MEMORY, speak without notes and recall names and faces.
8. WRITE MORE EFFECTIVE LETTERS.
9. ENRICH YOUR COMMAND OF ENGLISH.
10. INSPIRE YOU WITH NEW IDEAS.
11. INCREASE YOUR INCOME.
12. OUR ARMED FORCES. To a man going into the armed services this training is invaluable.

PERCY H. WHITING, Personal Representative of Dale Carnegie, Vice-President of the Dale Carnegie Institute, forceful and dynamic lecturer, author of Five Points of Selling, for over a quarter of a century Sales Manager for a national organization, in which capacity he trained over 72,000 men and women to sell.

HOW THIS COURSE IS CONDUCTED

You will meet one evening a week for sixteen weeks as one of a group of 40 business men and women.

These meetings will be held in private dining rooms of hotels or restaurants. Each group will be strictly limited to forty.

Your instructors will tell you what is right with your talk and what is wrong with it, and how to remedy and improve it. Every member of the class will write his suggestions for improving your talks; so when you finish, you will have the instructor's help and the comments of 39 of your fellow students. You will receive the helpful co-operation of your associates in the class.

As a result of this training you will soon develop courage and self-possession. You will learn to think on your feet. You will conquer fear; and "Fear," said Elbert Hubbard, "defeats more men than any other one thing in the world."

As the course progresses, you will be shown how to plan and prepare and construct your talks, how to illustrate your points, how to be clear, how to be entertaining, how to be impressive and convincing. You will be taught how to appear to advantage before a group, how to remember what you want to say, how to begin and how to end your talks.

If we described here all the things this training will do for you, it would sound like exaggeration. So we have prepared a booklet which outlines the benefits to be derived from this training, which will be given away at this meeting. In our files at 20 E. Jackson Blvd. are the names of hundreds of students who have taken this training. If you care to investigate, we will furnish you any or all of these names. You are invited to write or telephone them and discover for yourself precisely how they have profited by it.

MAKE YOURSELF QUICKLY AND FAVORABLY KNOWN

Theodore Alvy, Chief Engineer of La Cour Iron Works, attended monthly meetings of the American Association of Engineers for twelve years without being able to say a word. After completing this training, he arose at one of their meetings and spoke for twelve minutes.

"I made more friends," said Mr. Alvy, "and acquired more prestige by one twelve-minute talk than I had been able to do in a dozen years as a silent, inarticulate member."

Hundreds of other students have had similar experiences. So can you at meetings in your business or community.

Appeal Made for 3,000 to Aid Hospitals

BY JUDITH CASS.

AN ANSWER to the countless Chicago women who have wondered casually how badly their city needs Red Cross volunteer nurses' aids: The Chicago chapter of the Red Cross is sending out an urgent plea for nearly 3,000 aids to serve in almost all of the city's 57 hospitals.

"We don't want women with tiny children or with home duties they have to fill," says Mrs. Richard Gambrill Jr., director of public relations for the Chicago chapter. "We are looking for women who by managing their daytime duties could give us two days a week, approximately six hours a day."

The call for aids is not directed to those who are employed during the day, Mrs. Gambrill says, as business women have filled the evening training courses thru late spring. The Evanston Red Cross office at 615 Davis st. will be open at 7:30 o'clock tonight for signing up North Shore women to take an evening course but to do daytime duty in Chicago hospitals.

Now taking a nurses' aid course is Miss Ann Carpenter, who is in training at Cook County hospital, where her mother, Mrs. Keith Carpenter, also is an aid. When Miss Carpenter's course is over at the end of the month she may request to be assigned to a veterans' hospital.

Since Miss Carpenter has had to give up her duties in the offices of the American Field Service, 30 N. Michigan av., her place has been taken by Mrs. Wells Farnham, whose son, Wells Jr., recently completed an 18 month stint driving ambulances in Italy. He has signed up for another six months with the service. The applicants whom Mrs. Farnham interviews on Tuesdays and Thursdays must be classified as 4-F, 1-C, or 4A-h, and those accepted must be prepared to pay their own expenses to the port of embarkation. It costs about $250 to outfit a driver. Once overseas, the driver is housed and fed and receives $20 a month spending money.

Within two or three weeks John Wilson, son of the John T. Wilsons of Evanston, will leave to become a driver in Burma. Mr. Wilson, one of about 150 young men who have gone overseas thru the Chicago office of the service, had been driving in North Africa and Italy for 16 months when he returned to this country last May. One of his friends, H. Oldfield Selz, son of the Henry Selzes of Evanston, is on duty in France.

News from Manila.

The Red Cross will be swamped with messages to anxious relatives of Americans who have been held in the Japanese concentration camps at Manila. Mr. and Mrs. Harold Mason Kneedler spent yesterday at their radio and are awaiting word from Mr. Kneedler's brothers, Donald and Edgar Kneedler, their wives, and children, who were in the Santo Tomas camp, which is reported in American hands. Mr. Kneedler communicated with the Red Cross on Friday to be sure he would receive news of his brothers and their families as soon as possible. He in turn will relay the news to his father, Dr. Harold D. Kneedler, who is in Washington, D. C., and to his mother, who is in California. Dr. and Mrs. Kneedler, who lived in Manila, returned to the United States on the last voyage of the Gripsholm. They

Thru the Looking Glass

As a sachet addict of many years' standing, we are amused and delighted by some very new, very inexpensive, very charming ones that have come to market.

These are none of the silk-and-satin jobs that make a real dent in the pocketbook. Some ingenious soul has been inspired to place a sachet with a strong and lasting perfume tightly between two pieces of pretty, sturdy paper. We tore one apart just to see what made the perfume wheels go 'round and found that the scent, heavily concentrated, impregnates three little circles of blotting paper.

It's an excellent idea. The perfume—take your choice of gardenia, lilac, rose, or carnation—is wonderfully far-reaching and the outer packet is attractive. Just one, tucked into the pocketbook, the cupboard, or the chest that houses your linens or lingerie, does a grand job of imparting the fragrance to everything it touches. Because these are brand, spanking new we don't know by actual trial how long the scent lingers but our guess would be a good two or three months.

The little paper packets are colorfully dressed up with flowers that identify the fragrance. The carnation sachets, for instance, are pink with a perky red blossom in the center. Gardenia and rose are a cool green, with the flowers that give them their fragrance as the center design. The lilac is identified by the heliotrope tinted flower against a delicate green.

Three sachets to a package cost only a few pennies, but they're a daintiness aid that fastidious women will find great fun. Tucked away with handkerchiefs, linens, lingerie, baby clothes, or tacked up in the closet where you hang your clothes they spin a fine web of scent.

If this tempts you further to limber up your shoulders without benefit of massage do this: Sit straight and tall with arms hanging at sides. Lift and drop the shoulders three or four times, relaxing each time. Circle shoulders forward, up, back, and down. Do this slowly five or six times. Feel better? Heroic Piano Recital Given by Rubinstein

BY CLAUDIA CASSIDY.

What a fabulous difference there is between the good and the great. Take piano recitals. Of recent seasons we have had them by the score, but what do you really remember? Horowitz at his peak. Rachmaninoff in the farewell that was a deep rooted flowering of romanticism, Casadesus in glorious return to his finest form. And now Artur Rubinstein, in heroic Chopin recital which took possession of piano and audience yesterday at Orchestra hall. It was music set apart in splendor, a titanic performance, supreme in its wealth of feeling, its undercurrent of surging emotion.

There was a poignant sense of time and space about it, both as tribute to Chopin and to the Polish people. Rubinstein prefaced it with "The Star Spangled Banner" and the Polish national anthem, and he played them soberly, almost with reverence, as if they were holy, as freedom is holy to one who has known its loss.

Then he launched into Chopin superb not only in itself, but in its qualities of contrast and completion—Chopin set between the twin citadels of the proud Polonaise in F-sharp minor, defiant in the face of danger, and the triumphant Polonaise in A flat, which had an urgent vitality, as if out of the deadness of defeat the sap of victory was rising.

Between these peaks were many beautiful things, perhaps most beautiful of all the wonderful Sonata in B minor [opus 58] and the glory of the Ballade in G minor. Huneker once called the first theme of the sonata "an aubade, a nocturne of the morning." There is nothing lovelier in Chopin, and it set the mood of the performance. After it the scherzo bubbled, the largo murmured a song of shadows, and the finale burst into a radiance possible only when supreme technique implements understanding. The ballade was heroic poetry incarnate.

There were other things, too, of course. The Fantaisie-Impromptu "lit a'runnin'," which is the only way it captures that flooding lyricism, and the etudes and mazurkas were a delight. Only the Scherzo in B minor, which sometimes sounded bony, was in part below the amazing level of performance, perhaps because it came just after intermission and the spell of a memorable recital had momentarily been broken.

Encores? Yes, but I didn't hear them. Anything would have been anti-climax after the thundering brilliance of that A-flat Polonaise, which sounded like a victorious army marching home with banners.

Five Millions Sought to Aid Cancer Fight

With its convention roll call reduced from an expected 1,000 to less than 50 by the recent order forbidding large conventions, field workers of the American Cancer society yesterday opened their eighth annual meeting, which will continue thru Wednesday in the Hotel Continental.

Directors under the leadership of Mrs. Harold Vincent Milligan of New York, national commander, will formulate plans for a campaign, to begin April 1, to raise $5,000,000 in contributions to further the educational work of the group, which has 300,000 members, all volunteers.

Funds of the group are employed to extend research, to assist in establishing medically supervised clinics in communities thruout the nation, and to educate the public in the importance of early diagnosis of cancer, which causes one in eight deaths each year. Children as well as adults of all ages are victims of cancer, Mrs. Milligan said.

A large percentage of the group's membership consists of persons who have recovered from cancer, she explained, and these women and men give their leisure time to visiting homes in their communities and telling heads of families how to recognize early symptoms of malignancy and urging scheduled medical examinations for all family members.

The money raising campaign, similar to that of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, will be headed by Eric Johnston, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, as chairman of the executive council. The month of April has been designated by an act of congress as Cure Cancer month, and President Roosevelt is expected to issue a proclamation soon.

BY ALBERT GOLDBERG.

Music business, like show business, is unpredictable. If, some years ago, you had polled experts as to the type of attraction most likely to achieve perennial success, it is quite certain that Russian male choruses, singing only their own music in their own language, in a highly stylized manner, would have come out not far from the bottom of the list. Yet at least two such organizations have had highly profitable careers and continue season in and out to lure the American public to hear a type of music quite removed from the average citizen's normal taste or experience.

The lesser known of the two groups, the Gen. Platoff Don Cossack chorus, came to the Civic Opera house yesterday afternoon and again, as far as the eye could see, seats were occupied with apparently well pleased customers. One hastens to admit, of course, in the midst of recurring amazement, that the Russians invariably turn in a good performance, caviar tho it may be. Some of the stalwarts no longer look as if they were going to mount a fiery Cossack steed and dash off to battle, but time has not dimmed the lustiness of their throats nor in any way shattered the peculiar discipline of their singing.

Nicholas Kostrukoff is the conductor of this group, and tho in bulk he would make three of his foremost rival, Serge Jaroff, he lacks that touch of cocky showmanship which, perhaps more than anything else, sold the American public on Cossack choruses. To the ear, however, there is little difference between the two groups. If your taste runs to organlike sonorities of virile tone, to reedy tenors and the profoundest of basses, to hammering rhythms and the utter negation of rhythm, to assorted falsetto effects, then the Cossack choruses are your dish. And about the only choice you need make is to decide whether you prefer to see a little conductor who moves fast with jerks, or a big conductor who moves with ponderous ease.

Curtiss hall likewise was filled with an audience that came to hear a very young violinist, Robert Magad, and an older and far more mature pianist, Evelyn White. During his 12 years on this planet, Robert has acquired a decidedly respectable technique on his instrument, which is, at present, at least as displayed in the Mendelssohn concerto, utilized chiefly to play fast, and not always wtih perfect accuracy. The production of a genuinely beautiful tone concerns him very little, and some of his heedlessness in the concerts might be forgiven in an untalented youngster, but not in one as really gifted as Robert.

Miss White proved herself a capable pianist, with poise, plenty of technique, a firm, well rounded tone, and sufficient imagination to make Chopin pieces interesting on even the same afternoon that Rubinstein played.

'Girl Rush' Digs Hard for Fun in Poor Mine

"GIRL RUSH."

By Mae Tinée.

If you like wild and woolly comedies with plenty of slap-stick, you may find a few chuckles in "Girl Rush."

It boasts a team that works hard at clowning—Frances Langford, who sings a couple of songs in her pleasant way, and Vera Vague, who follows her usual frantic pursuit of a man.

Because their show flops when all the customers dash out to find gold during the rush of '49, Brown and Carney leave the ladies of the cast to hold the fort while they take to the hills to hunt enough of the pretty yellow dust to take the troupe back to its native New York. As miners, they're good comedians. They end up in a frontier town, badly in need of food. Red Creek, the town, is dominated by crooked gamblers and has only one woman. The girls bring their show there to earn the gold they failed to mine.

After that comes a wild ride in a driverless stage coach, a bit of shooting, and a finale in which the men masquerade as ladies—some of which is mildly amusing.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Feb. 4.—With Bob Hope's announcement that he's ready to do a New York play and is already looking for one, the fat's in the fire regarding his Paramount contract—or maybe not. After all Mary Martin is still under contract there; she's been in New York for two years with "One Touch of Venus." . . . Nacio Herb Brown is back with Joseph Pasternak doing "The Kissing Bandit." No, he's not kissing—he's songwriting. . . . Grandma Reynolds [Barry Fitzgerald's mother in "Going My Way"] was the first one cast for Tom Breneman's "Breakfast in Hollywood." This time, she gets a good, long part. Michael Francis, an Ernst Lubitsch discovery, is cast in "Junior Miss" and in "Dragonwyck." He's quite a lad. He worked his way thru the University of Alabama, studied under Maria Ouspenskaya, sold shoes in New York while doing radio work, and is married and has one boy. . . . Howard Hughes is paging William Hebert to take "The Outlaw" on its debut to important cities. But Hebert is going to remain under that "Robe" until it's finished.

Cole Porter Opus to Start March 15.

The Cole Porter opus starts March 15 with Cary Grant and Monty Woolley. Alexis Smith may be taken off suspension for it. . . . Margaret O'Brien likes to pick her Aunt Mariassa's boy friends. One day at Metro, they passed Frederick Wilcox, who directed "Lassie." Margaret whispered, "That's the man you should marry." 'Why?" asked auntie. "Cause it would be nice for you to come and visit me every day and bring Lassie." . . . Fred Wanser writes: "I'm another old-timer, and I heard almost all those songs you wrote about, from Caruso to the present time. I remember when you suggested we keep an ear open for one Anne Jamison. Says I to myself, 'There's just another so-called artist who can't sing but has managed to get herself heard.' Then I listened and heard a voice of pure gold, supported by a great deal of mentality. The voice showed that. Where is Anne Jamison? Why do we have to listen to half-baked voices without character when songbirds like Anne remain silent? Another thing—how about 'The Shop Around the Corner' for us again on the screen? We saw it three times. We'd go twice more. So how about Anne and 'The Shop,' Hopper?"

More Fun.

Mark Sandrich is having himself a time looking at old pictures to pick out backgrounds, styles and songs for "Blue Skies." The picture goes from 1919 to 1942. . . . Ernst Lubitsch was brought to this country years ago by Mary Pickford. Mary would like to borrow him to put his touch into "One Touch of Venus." The other night at dinner he was telling me about an idea that went wild. He had a scene for a cross-eyed butler, and remembered that a friend had one. He asked if the butler would come and buttle in the picture. The butler was delighted, but when Lubitsch saw him on the screen, his eyes had uncrossed. So Ben Turpin got the job. . . . Randolph Scott was climbing up the side of a ship in "Captain Kidd" when an extra kicked him square in the face. Scott said, "Young man, you'll be a producer soon." How's that?" the boy asked. "Well, I'm on my way up, and you kicked me, which means you're training for a producer's job."

INSTALMENT XXV.

CLIPPINGS.

At the top of the stairs, Sybella unlocked a bolted door which opened onto a small roof garden. She went to the back and looked down over a low tile wall. A ladder leading down to the top of the fire escape was firmly fastened there.

The window opening onto the fire escape was fully raised. She struck another match and by its light stepped thru the window onto a kitchen chair.

The match burned out.

Sybella closed the window and pulled down the shade, then found a light switch by the door to the hall and flipped it up.

The kitchen was small, but neat and clean and showed evidence of competent handling.

The kitchen cupboard with glass doors housed a set of china fine enough to catch Sybella's eye. Limoges dinner plates, gold encrusted and ostentatious, stood on a pile beside delicate plates and paper-thin cups and saucers.

The kitchen opened onto a fair sized pantry with a built-in dining-nook done in yellow. There was a sterling silver service in a mahogany case and several sets of fine handworked linen in a drawer.

Sybella put out the kitchen lights and turned on the lamp in the hall. The apartment was larger than she had thought, for the hall stretched nearly the full length of the building, with the pantry and kitchen at one end, and three doors opening off of it to the left. To her right were two more doors, one far to the front and the other close at hand. She opened it a crack and looked out, discovering it was the service door she had tried outside.

The first door to the left led into a bedroom which might have come out of Sloane's window. Sybella found the shades were drawn and turned on twin lamps on the dressing table. Light struck back from the triple mirrors touching a wide footless bed of baby blue, with a quilted headboard of shimmering satin. A matching chaise longue stood in one corner. There was a bench in front of the dressing table. In front of one of the windows was a small puff chair.

The door to the commodious closet stood partly open. Sybella pulled it wider and turned the closet light on. There were hat boxes on the shelves bearing labels of expensive shops, and an assorted collection of expensive shoes and slippers on slanting racks stood in an orderly row. The remainder of the closet was crowded with a fortune in frocks and coats, and suits and gowns.

On the 10th hanger, under a chic fall suit that was older than the rest, she found a tie. It bore the tag of a Fifth av. men's shop that was notoriously expensive. It was blue and rich and thick and had been worn a lot. Sybella gave it a single glance and decided it didn't belong to Troy. Everything Troy owned was superlatively feminine.

So far, the only incongruous note in the whole delightful apartment was the tie. Of course Troy had a husband, but from what Sybella had heard of Martin Gallagher, he'd be most unlikely to invest six or seven dollars in a handmade silk cravat.

She pulled it down and tucked it into her handbag, then finished her search of the closet. The only thing of interest was the tie.

She abandoned the closet and went thru a drawer in the richly appointed dressing table. There was nothing there except an assortment of the small odds and ends.

A door with a full length mirror led to the bathroom which had another door opening into the hall. Fresh initialed towels hung on the racks. The medicine cabinet held bath salts and powder, a safety razor with blades, and a box of sleeping pills.

She put out all the lights and walked to the remaining door near the front of the hall. It led into a sitting room. A light on 81st st. threw each piece of furniture into dim relief. It showed a curtained archway leading into an alcove across the room.

Sybella drew the curtains and turned the ceiling lights on, then tried a door which apparently led to a closet in one corner of the room. It was locked. A highboy by the fireplace served to conceal a compact bar.

Sybella went thru the archway and lit another lamp, then put out the lights in the living room. The alcove was furnished with a day bed, a kidney desk, and two deep chairs. A built-in bookcase held two china cats which regarded her haughtily from their perch on the top shelf.

Over the kidney desk hung a round mirror in an ornate gilt frame. Set in a circle around the edge of its convex surface were a score or more of tinier round mirrors, about the size of quarters. The whole thing picked up the contents of the room in toto and tossed it back at Sybella in a confusion of miniature pictures, scrupulous in detail but incalculably small. As she sat down at the desk, she found it disturbing to see herself multiplied so many times and reduced to elfin proportions.

The desk contained blotting paper, pens, and stationery, and a copy of the New Yorker, dated several months before. Uninteresting, at best, Sybella decided, as she closed it.

She got up and surveyed the books on the shelves, but there was certainly nothing there.

She returned to the desk and opened the drawer once more. There were two New Yorkers instead of one as she had thought at first. They were dated a week apart and each one had the corner of a page turned down. At least they were something Troy had kept. Sybella opened the first one at the place which was marked, then spread it flat on the desk and opened the second. Together they formed two parts of a profile of Daniel Pine.

The first was about a widow named Cornelia Brown, who had two sons. One had been killed in action, and only that day the other had been run over by a taxi. The second clipping concerned a sergeant named Felix Nightingale who had come to New York on four days' leave to be married and become separated from his bride during their first 10 minutes in town.

[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Meat and fats are scarce, but we may have all the cereals we want. Breakfast cereals are so plentiful that home economists have been devising many new ways to use them in cooking other than as breakfast dishes. Cereals are nutritious and a cheap source of energy. Their possibilities as a cooking ingredient seem unlimited.

Rolled oats and corn flakes are the two most popular cereal ingredients for cooked dishes. Oats stretch your supply of hamburger neatly and make it seem more tender.

Special Hamburgers.
[Makes eight.]

1 pound ground beef
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
¼ cup catsup
2 tablespoons chopped onion
½ cup milk
¾ cup rolled oats

Combine ingredients thoroly, shape into flat patties, and fry until brown on both sides. Serve on split buns.

Salisbury Loaf.
[Serves eight.]

4 cups corn flakes
1 cup milk
2 teaspoons salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
¼ cup chopped parsley
1 tablespoon chopped onion
1½ pounds ground beef
¼ pound ground fresh pork

Crush corn flakes. Beat eggs slightly and add milk, seasonings, parsley, onion, meat, and corn flakes. Mix thoroly. Form into loaf on baking dish, or pack lightly in greased loaf pan. Bake at 425 degrees about 40 minutes.

Corn Flake Waffles.

3 cups whole corn flakes
1¾ cups milk
1½ cups sifted flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons sugar
¼ cup melted shortening

Crush corn flakes into fine crumbs. Beat egg yolks thoroly, and add milk. Sift flour, baking powder, salt, and sugar together. Add crumbs. Stir into liquid mixture. Add shortening. Mix only until well combined. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Bake in hot waffle iron and serve with maple sirup, honey or jam.

TURN IN WASTE FATS FOR POINTS AND PENNIES!

$5 PRIZE RECIPE

Stuffed Oranges.
[Serves four.]

4 medium oranges
8 dates, finely chopped
4 teaspoons chopped walnuts
4 teaspoons seedless raisins
4 teaspoons grated coconut
1 egg white
2 tablespoons sugar
1 tablespoon coconut

Cut an inch slice from the top of each orange. Using a fruit knife remove meat from orange shells. Combine chopped orange meat, dates, nuts, raisins, and coconut. Fill shells. Arrange oranges in deep baking dish. Add about 1 cup of water or enough to cover bottom of dish and to come half way up sides of oranges. Bake in a moderate, 350 degree, oven 30 minutes. Top with meringue made by beating egg white until stiff but not dry and adding sugar. Sprinkle remaining one tablespoon of coconut on tops of meringues. Return to oven for 10 to 12 minutes or until delicately browned. May be served hot or cold.

Fashion Steps Out in Smart New Footgear

BY REA SEEGER.

Fascinating new, extremely youthful footgear, marked with prices around $10, sounds like the millenium. Add the snap of decorative nail-head trim, jaunty lines, heels that are appreciably higher than any in the last two years, sleek streamlines, and platform soles—and it still sounds fantastic. But it's all true. It's a new line of beautifully designed and expertly made models for street and dress parade, each model a jewel of flattering perfection.

The beauty and quality can well be visualized from the catchy, expressive names—'kerchief kidskin and 'kerchief suede. The leathers live up to their names, too, for they're soft and flexible and super comfortable on the foot.

The patent leather models are scintillating affairs to accent prints and all summer clothes. The collection includes the fine new patent leather that can be worn the year 'round without the danger of unsightly cracks or the necessity of pampering care. This is something to cheer about, as patent leathers always have been a wardrobe pet for many reasons besides their shimmering gleam.

Models patterned after the outline of Roman sandals come in colored suede and 'kerchief kidskin. These have three straps of the same width across the instep and the ankle. Wedge soles and heels make them decorative as well as the last word in foot comfort.

Platform soles on all the models are strictly within the law and will be seen everywhere. The higher heels are flattering and are sure of a welcome after months of oblivion. The high-lows, a compromise between teetering high and flat heels, are brand new and will click with the college and career girls.

It's a knockout collection to see and from which to choose. The only catch: You still must dig up a ration stamp to own a pair!

80 Student Nurses to Enter St. Luke's Hospital School

A new class of 80 student nurses, 77 of whom are enrolled in the cadet nurse corps of the United States public health service, will enter St. Luke's hospital school of nursing on Wednesday. The total enrollment of the school, including new students, now is 383.

At 7:30 p. m. on Wednesday in the hospital chapel, the school will have the first of a new series of going-out services, during which graduating nurses will receive their diplomas. Most of the young women now completing St. Luke's training have expressed the desire to enlist in the army or navy nurse corps. Others will seek work as civilian nurses in army veterans' hospitals, the nursing office said.

The cadet nurse corps, a war time unit designed to increase enrollments in schools of nursing and to help supply nurses for military duty, finances the student's tuition, board and lodging, uniforms, and minimum personal expenses in return for a pledge to enter essential nursing, either civilian or military, after graduation.

Ultra-Violet Lamp Sought for Baby Girl

[Activities of the Sally Joy Brown department are sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.]

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Our readers have been most helpful in aiding invalid children. Especially kind have been parents who have had sick or disabled youngsters of their own. They understand the worry of other parents with similar problems.

"Dear Miss Brown: My husband has been a prisoner of war for many months. Coupled with that dread anxiety is my concern for our baby daughter's health. My allowance cannot possibly stretch to cover the special light treatments so urgently needed by her, which the physician has recommended daily during the winter months as a possible means of aiding her."

We hope Mrs. R.'s appeal will find a ready response. Her 9 year old son has been an invalid since birth, and altho he is small and underdeveloped, he can no longer use his stroller. His parents, whose budget is limited, make every effort during the summer to send the little shut-in away from the city where he can enjoy the country air. A folding wheel chair, child's size, is needed for use in the home now and for facility in moving later. The family lives on the southwest side.

Goren on Bridge

By Charles H. Goren

[Copyright: 1945: By Charles H. Goren.]

ANSWERS TO SATURDAY'S QUIZ.

Q. 1—As South you hold:
♠K5 ♥K1073 ♦AJ1097 ♣75
The bidding has proceeded:

East	South	West	North
1 club	1 diamond	Pass	3 diamonds
Pass	?

A.—Three hearts. If partner happens to have four hearts a game in that suit is probable. If not the hand should be safe for four diamonds in view of partner's jump raise.

Q. 2—Partner opens with one spade and you hold
♠AJ642 ♥K65 ♦75 ♣AKQ
What is your response?

A.—Three clubs. Make your slam try early instead of waiting until after the game level has been reached. It is improper to respond with three spades, because when partner goes to four spades you won't know what to do. If you should then decide to make a slam try you would have to go to five to do so and in some cases jeopardize the game.

Q. 3—As South you hold:
♠AKQ62 ♥A1053 ♦43 ♣76
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 spade	Pass	2 clubs	Pass
2 hearts	Pass	3 clubs	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Pass. Partner apparently has just a long string of clubs and does not like spades or hearts. Don't insist upon your own suit. Your hand will make a good dummy. Your partner's will not.

Q. 4—As South you hold:
♠642 ♥J10974 ♦A976 ♣5
The bidding has proceeded:

West	North	East	South
1 club	Double	1 heart	?

What do you bid?

A.—Double. East is probably playing hoss and trying to talk you out of your natural bid. A good general principle to follow is that when your partner has shown strength and your right hand opponent takes the words out of your mouth, a business double is in order.

Q. 5—As South you hold:
♠KQ1096 ♥643 ♦632 ♣A7
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
Pass	1 diamond	Pass	Pass
1 spade	Pass	3 spades	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Four spades. This should be done despite partner's previous pass. Your partner knows that you did not have an opening bid and is still coaxing you to go game. You have as good a hand as you could reasonably be expected to have in view of your original pass. Partner must have been lying in wait for them and now he is not quite certain as to how strong you are.

Q. 6—As South you hold:
♠K2 ♥Q74 ♦J62 ♣Q7653
The bidding has proceeded:

West	North	East	South
1 no trump	Double	Pass	?

What do you bid?

Q. 7—You are South, vulnerable, and hold:
♠643 ♥KJ2 ♦QJ ♣96532
The bidding has proceeded:

East	South	West	North
Pass	Pass	1 spade	2 spades
Pass	3 clubs	Pass	5 clubs
Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Six clubs. Cheerfully. Partner has undertaken the collection of eleven tricks tho you may have nothing but four clubs. You have very important cards in the red suits and the fifth club is not to be missed at.

Q. 8—As South you hold:
♠Q75 ♥A652 ♦A109 ♣Q107
The bidding has proceeded:

East	South	West	North
Pass	Pass	1 heart	2 spades
Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Three hearts. This is an enormous hand opposite partner's jump overcall and something drastic should be done to counter the effect produced by the earlier pass. A slam is not at all improbable.

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN.

Chicago's city Golden Gloves tournament in Marigold Gardens next Monday night, which brings together the 32 champions of the north and south side sectionals held last week in St. Sabina and Loyola university gymnasiums, shapes up as one of the classiest amateur boxing shows in the long and brilliant history of the sport.

The five days of eliminations brought out youngsters of all shapes and sizes, stylists and sluggers, the adept and the inept in scores of thrilling fights. From these sectional fistic hoppers emerged 16 open division lads who will vie for city titles and places on Chicago's team in the Tournament of Champions, and 16 novice youngsters whose only objective this year is a city championship in the class for inexperienced boxers.

When THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S 18th annual Tournament of Champions rolls around in the Stadium Feb. 26, 27, and 28, it may not find even one defending Chicago champion ready to try his skill and luck against the teams from 27 other cities in the vast Golden Gloves area, for only two came back to win sectional championships. One is little Jackie Boyd, 112 pound champion in 1944, the other is big Luke Baylark, last year's heavyweight title holder.

Boyd to Oppose Uyeda.

Boyd will represent the north side in the same division Monday night and will draw classy Don Uyeda, an Hawaiian born Japanese, as his opponent. Baylark, who went thru the south section tourney without opposition, will have to face another Negro slugger, Jesse James, who spent three years in the coast artillery and held the heavyweight championship of his camp.

Both Uyeda and James were impressive in their march to sectional titles and they're both confident they will be on hand to turn back the bids of the heavyweights sent to Chicago from the 27 other cities in the vast Golden Gloves territory.

As in other years, champions will invade the Stadium from centers as far east as Florida, as far west as California, from the Canadian line on the north to the Gulf of Mexico and the huge state of Texas on the south.

The north side will be represented in the 118 pound division by Joseph Plummer of the C. Y. O., who won the 1944 novice title. Against him will be pitted Salvador Melendez, fast moving American born Mexican who has had seven years' experience.

Carter to Meet Rawlings.

Wray Carter, who was Tri-state 112 pound champion in 1941, will represent the north against Edward Rawlings, whose other specialty is tennis, in the 126 pound class.

The army and the navy will be interested in the 135 pound bout, for Pvt. Vincent Pellegrini, stationed at Fort Sheridan, will go in for the north against Bernard Paige who spent two years in the navy. Another former sailor, Caesar Douglas, will fight for the south against Lofton Mitchell in the welterweight division.

The marines land in the 160 pound class. They'll be represented by Sgt. Elmer Koske, who won the south side title, and will meet James Burke, known as the fighting Sunday school teacher.

Seek Heavyweight Title.

The light heavyweight division brings together Le Roy Scales of the north and Art Raby of the south, a pair of hard hitting Negro lads who both would like to be

The first time Hunchy got the ball in scrimmage he dashed off tackle for 97 yards and a touchdown. . . . 'I thought maybe the youngster might be getting ideas, running thru my varsity that way, so I decided to take him down. . . . I said to him, 'Boy, I know you scored a touchdown, but, doggone it, you started late, then you hit the wrong hole, and, instead of cuttin' in away from the backer-up, you cut out. Then, when you coulda stiff armed the half back, you slowed up and side stepped him.' . . . Hunchy looked at me a minute, then walked away. Then he came back and asked, 'How was that run for distance, coach?'" . . . Luke Sewell, the Browns' manager, is satisfied now that George McQuinn was out at third base in the 11th inning of the second game of the 1944 world series, but it took him a long time to see the light. . . . He had insisted Umpire Ziggy Sears had missed the play until motion pictures of the series were shown a group of soldiers and members of Sewell's U. S. A snowstorm, you say? Cold sleets?

ILLINOIS FIVE HOLDS KEY IN BIG NINE RACE

Plays Ohio State Twice, Iowa Once.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

While Iowa and Ohio State, currently tied in the Western conference basketball race, each with five victories and one defeat, held attention Saturday by maintaining their title pace, it is apparent that Illinois will be a most important factor in the concluding month of the campaign. The Illini already have beaten Iowa at Champaign to effect the tie between the latter and Ohio State. They still have the return game at Iowa City and the series with the Buckeyes to play.

Since Iowa and Ohio State are not paired this year, if Illinois wins the championship there can be no question of its right to the honor. Each conference team plays six of eight opponents. Minnesota is the other absentee on the Buckeye schedule while Iowa does not meet Northwestern. As the race now shapes up, Iowa and Ohio State apparently have about the same schedule with Illinois, of course, now being the pivotal quintet.

Illini Finish on Road.

Illinois is further handicapped in that it has eight conference games left beginning with Saturday's engagement at Minneapolis against a revived Minnesota squad which tumbled Indiana in Bloomington last Saturday night, 56 to 48. In the last nine days of the season Illinois plays four games away from home, meeting Ohio State and Northwestern on successive nights and finishing with Indiana Feb. 28 and Iowa March 3.

Iowa cleared the mental hurdle Saturday night imposed by the narrow escape from defeat at Michigan Jan. 19 when the Hawkeyes came from behind in the last two minutes to win, 29 to 27. Saturday, on its home court, Iowa won the return game, 50 to 37. Iowa's only game this week is at Indiana Saturday.

Play Seven Games This Week.

Illinois' game Saturday night at Minnesota ends 15 days of inactivity except for intrasquad games, of course, and the Gophers may cause trouble. Their other conference victory was over Purdue in Minneapolis.

The week's schedule of seven games begins Wednesday night when Indiana invades Lafayette for the return game with Purdue. The Hoosiers won at home, 51 to 50.

Northwestern travels to Michigan Friday night and returns immediately to face Ohio State in the first game of Saturday's double header in the Stadium. Since Ohio State also is on the road, playing Friday at Wisconsin, neither the Buckeyes nor Wildcats will have any advantage on the score of travel. Michigan moves into Madison Saturday night, thus giving Badger fans two consecutive contests.

Oklahoma Aggies and De Paul complete the Stadium double header Saturday and the Demons are seeking their 17th victory as opposed to a 43 to 40 defeat by Illinois in the Stadium.

NELSON WINS AT CORPUS CHRISTI WITH 264 TOTAL

Corpus Christi, Tex., Feb. 4 (AP).—Byron Nelson celebrated his 33d birthday anniversary by winning the championship of the Corpus Christi open golf tournament today, finishing with a 264. Harold [Jug] McSpaden was second with 268.

Nelson drew down $1,000 in war bonds in winning his third tournament of the winter tour. Since the first of the year he has finished no lower than a tie for second in five tourneys.

McSpaden received $700 for second place, while Ky Laffoon of Chicago and Sam Schneider of Corpus Christi tied for third and split $1,000.

BADGERS BEATEN SECOND TIME BY SAILORS, 59-49

Fast breaking basketball gave Great Lakes a 59 to 49 victory over the University of Wisconsin at the naval training center yesterday afternoon. It was the Sailors' second victory this season over the Badgers.

Wisconsin arrived at the naval base after a road trip to Ann Arbor and Columbus, and Coach Bud Foster sought to conserve energy and man power, electing to follow a ball control plan of attack. The Badgers handled the ball outside the free-throw circle for three minutes before any attempt to set up a play was made.

Sparky Clark broke the ice with a layup shot, Luke Majorki hit from the corner, Walter Budko scored a free throw and a basket, made a bat-in, and Gordon Gillespie dropped in a long one to give the Sailors a 9 to 0 lead.

The Badgers came within four points of the Sailors with two minutes remaining in the first half. Great Lakes then sprinted into a 31 to 24 lead at the intermission.

Again Wisconsin pulled up to within four points early in the second half with Ray Patterson and Des Smith leading the attack. Then Mickey McGuire matched this duet with a drive that brought his total scoring for the game to 17 points.

BIG 10 DIRECTORS END MEETING; NO CZAR IN SIGHT

The directors of athletics of the Western conference, who ended a 12 hour meeting Saturday night at the Sherman hotel without naming a commissioner, as they had anticipated, have not set a date for their next meeting. Lack of action, it is understood, was due to refusal by H. O. [Fritz] Crisler, Michigan's director, to accept the commissionership.

The directors and faculty members, it is believed, have completed revision of the regulations pertaining to the office of commissioner.

Boehm Rolls 1,585 to Take Petersen Lead

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Don't look now, but the lead in the $43,200 Petersen Bowling Classic finally changed hands yesterday. The No. 1 position still belongs to Detroit, but no longer to Al Heiden, the 35 year old factory foreman who posted a 1,577 last Monday morning which withstood the assaults of 20 squads before being dropped to second place.

The engineer of the switch was 29 year old Charley Boehm, who shot a total of 1,585 in spite of a blistered thumb, the pressure of a Sunday afternoon crowd, and the Heiden 1,577, which had taken on a more formidable appearance each night as the first half of the 16 day marathon went thru 28 squads.

Rolling on the second detail yesterday, Boehm, a job setter in a Detroit plant and the father of three children, was recalled as the young man who held the early lead in the 1944 Classic thru seven squads.

Needed 217, but Rolled 225.

He started off with 246 and 209 on the Archer-35th graveyard pair—alleys 15, 16, 1, and 2. A 166 interrupted him in the third game, but he followed with a 215. Games of 171, 190, and 163 came next, and the enthusiasm of the crowd which had followed him on his chore chilled. He needed a 217 to tie Heiden. The 175 pound Detroiter, a forceful bowler with a quick hook, brought them back cheering by closing out with a six bagger and a spare for a 225.

Faetz Leads Tonight's Parade.

The tournament will revert to a three-a-night basis this evening, with starting times listed at 4:30 p. m., 7:15 p. m., and 10 p. m. Heading the first 32 man ensemble will be Leo Faetz of Chicago's great bowling clan. Leo has averaged around 200 in his several Petersen efforts, and last year enjoyed command of the lead for several squads with a 1,622, 36 pins back of the ultimate winner, John Farkas of Detroit.

BASEBALL MEN SET TO LAUNCH 1945 CAMPAIGN

"Patterson for Game"

New York, Feb. 4 (AP).—Lt. Col. Larry MacPhail, head of the syndicate that recently purchased the New York Yankees, said tonight that War Mobilization Director Byrnes would come to recognize the value of war time baseball.

"I have been with Undersecretary of War Patterson for two and a half years," MacPhail, who soon will return to civilian life, told 1,200 at the annual dinner of the New York baseball writers. "I know that he thinks that expenditure of man power and transportation for baseball is worth while. I think Mr. Byrnes will come to that same decision.

"Washington bigwigs are all friendly to baseball," MacPhail continued. "They realize the contribution baseball has given to war relief. Of course baseball is not essential, but I don't think any one in his right mind thinks that baseball should stop."

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 4.—The major league baseball folks who last evening concluded their two day special sessions by adopting a new 25 year working agreement were bubbling over with optimism this evening preparatory to scattering to their respective homes to proceed with details connected with the launching of the 1945 championship races.

Just what it was that brought them out of their state of doubt over prospects for continuing in business, wasn't revealed but it was apparent that in some way they have received assurances that the government authorities would cooperate in an attempt to keep the game alive.

Fighting Lads Want Baseball.

The fighting lads on the far flung fronts want the game to go on because it gives them something to argue about and their attitude probably will prove the weighting factor that will spare enough players, most of them 4-F's, to make the pennant campaigns possible.

During the meetings the little matter of filling the baseball commissioner's job received endless attention at the hands of the local baseball writers but the magnates who, after all, are the men who will pick the successor to the late K. M. Landis, didn't share to any extent in this excitement. When things calmed down today it was evident that more than half the clubs haven't at any time considered the commissionership a pressing problem.

The magnates agreed unanimously that a commissioner should be hired at $50,000 a year as quickly as possible but that can mean anything up to a delay of a year which is what a few of the clubs advocate. None is trying to save money by keeping the chair vacant. It is entirely a question of finding a man deemed suitable and most of the owners freely admit that none of the candidates put forward by this or

FIRST PERIOD.

Scoring—Grosso [Smith], 1:34; Kennedy [unassisted], 5:45; Metz [unassisted], 13:53; Smith [McDonald], 18:32.

Penalties—Field, Pratt, March.

SECOND PERIOD.

Penalty—Davidson.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Four times last night Blackhawk bad boys were invited by Referee Bill Chadwick to repose in the penalty box and on three of these occasions Ted Kennedy, Toronto right winger, scored. There also were three Hawk scores but Nick Metz supplemented the Kennedy hat trick performance with a goal. So that made the final score Toronto, 4; Chicago, 3, and it also made 14,204 fans leave Chicago Stadium in deep sorrow—again.

The Hawks twice were in the lead, 1 to 0, on a goal by Don Grosso, assisted by Clint Smith, one minute and 34 seconds after the opening faceoff, and 3 to 2 after Mill Mosienko, assisted by Mush March, had accomplished a circus goal in 7:49 of the second period.

Leafs Break 3 to 3 Tie.

The score was tied, 3 to 3, going into the final period but what proved to be the winning score was effected by Kennedy, assisted by Lorne Carr and Mel Hill while Joe Cooper was in the lockup. This one was made in 1:27 of the final period, and the Leafs played things pretty safe thereafter.

The first period ended with the score 2 to 2 and of the four goals in the period the Hawks scored the first and last.

There were only two assists on the four first period goals, on the two by the Hawks. As a buildup for the first tally Smith passed out from the corner to Grosso, poised in front of the cage, 20 feet out. Don cut loose with perfect aim and easily best McCool. The time was 1:34.

Kennedy Steals Puck, Scores.

The Leafs tied the score in 5:45, while Wilf Field was serving time, Cooper was attempting to ice the puck when Kennedy stole it, whirled over in front of the Hawk cage, and dazzled Goalie Karakas with a swift one.

Toronto took a 2 to 1 lead in 13:53 when Metz foiled Karakas from close in, but the first period score became a tie when Smith counted from four feet out. The time was 18:32.

The Hawks took a 3 to 2 lead on Mosienko's spectacular score in 7:49 of the second period. After taking a neat pass from March, Bill rocketed toward the cage and cut loose with his scoring shot just before diving into the cage himself.

The 3 to 2 Chicago lead stood up until well into the second half of the middle period. Cully Simon was put off for tripping and the Leafs moved forward. Pratt banged a carom against the end boards which went clear around the rear of the Hawk cage where it was picked up by Kennedy who found it a simple matter to score, Karakas being out of position on the unusual bounce of Pratt's billiard business.

Strengthen Hold on Cellar.

Cooper was in the penalty box in the last 30 seconds of the second period, thus had a minute and a half to serve at the opening of the third. Kennedy won the game seconds before Joe had finished his term.

By losing, the Hawks strengthened their hold on last place. The fifth place New York Rangers and the fourth place Boston Bruins played a 3 to 3 tie, each thereby gaining a point, or half a game, on the hapless Hawks.

Ray Blum, a seaman 2d class representing Radio Chicago, who earlier this season won Silver Skates, Illinois state and Tri-State skating titles, proved his versatility yesterday afternoon by winning the senior men's 440 and five mile races in the second annual ice skating meet sponsored by the Joseph F. Gubbins Athletic club on the Humboldt park lagoon.

For the second time in two years the C. Y. O. skaters failed to win a meet in which they entered, being tied for first place by the Northwest Skating club. Each scored 330 points. Peirce playground was third with 110. The light snow covering the ice slowed up times in all events.

Henry Wins Two Events.

Sharing honors with Blum as double winners were Ken Henry, who won the 220 and the mile races in the intermediate boys' division, and Elaine Bogda Gordon, who took the senior women's 440 and three-quarter mile events. Both are former Silver Skates champions and represented the Northwest Skating club. Summaries:

Hunter, 1943 Chicagoland Golden Gloves lightweight champion, was awarded a decision over Robert in a previous meeting last summer. In a subsequent appearance in Chicago, Chuck knocked out Jimmy Hunt in the first round.

Fowler is not the best fighter at his weight, but since arriving from Nashville last April, he has come thru with several surprises, not the least of which is a triumph over Terry Gibson, Los Angeles boxer, who is one of four boxers to beat Hunter. In his last appearance, Robert knocked out James [Smyles] Wilson in three rounds.

WORKERS BLAME DODGE COMPANY FOR 60 STRIKES

Plant Officials Ask End of Stoppages.

Charges that the company, not the employes, was responsible for more than 60 strikes and work stoppages at the Dodge Chicago plant since the plant began operation, were made at a meeting of 3,000 employes of the company yesterday in the Ashland Boulevard auditorium, 1608 Van Buren st.

The meeting was arranged by the United Automobile Workers [CIO], whose local 274 has a contract at the plant, and was attended by Mayor Kelly, State's Atty. Tuohy, Alan Strachan, deputy vice chairman of labor and production for the war production board, Eugene Brock, deputy regional war man power commissioner; Herbert Bass, regional WMC consultant, and Lester Brown, area WMC director.

Company Gives Answer.

In reply to charges at the meeting of alleged discrimination, arbitrary disciplinary lay-offs, and unsympathetic foremen, the company issued a statement which said:

"In spite of many strikes by employes in the Dodge Chicago plant in direct violation of contract, the plant has met its schedules every month. The war effort would be greatly aided if all employes would follow the lead and wishes of the great majority and give a day's work for a day's pay and discontinue their so-called unauthorized strikes."

The company also released a commendatory telegram from Col. Nelson S. Talbott of the air technical service command.

Ask U. S. to Take Over.

The meeting adopted resolutions urging that the government take over the plant, that the WMC take immediate steps to stop all referrals of employes to the plant, and that the war production board institute a program for proper supervision.

Mayor Kelly complimented the employes for being an "element of thinkers" and said that Chicago is known for the patriotism of its workers.

Brock said that the WMC will investigate conditions at the plant. Strachan said he will lay the workers' charges before Chairman Krug of the WPB.

GAS WORKERS' UNION ASKS 48 HOUR WEEK TO INCREASE WAGES

The Gas Workers union [AFL], representing 1,400 operational employes of the Peoples Gas, Light and Coke company, yesterday announced it would take a strike vote Feb. 15 unless the company granted employes the right to work a six day, 48 hour week instead of the present five day, 40 hour week.

James E. Fitzpatrick, business manager of local 18007, said he will present the workers' ultimatum today to Carl B. Nagler, company vice president in charge of production. The longer week schedule was ratified by 500 local members at a meeting Saturday in the Ashland auditorium as one means of increasing weekly wages by the margin of time and a half pay for the additional eight hours.

Fitzpatrick said the war labor board has been considering the local's applications for pay increases since last April. The business manager said none of the applications would be withdrawn, regardless of whether the company adopts the 48 hour schedule.

'DON'T TRAVEL' PLUG REJECTED BY UPTON CLOSE

Upton Close, author and radio commentator, said yesterday he "couldn't stomach" an office of war information request to include a "don't travel" plug on his broadcast program because he didn't think it seemed consistent with White House policy on travel privileges.

In a letter to OWI Close wrote: "This is the first time I've refused to coöperate on my radio tie-up on any request. In preparing my script, I did my best, but I just couldn't stomach the business of asking the American public not to travel when a dog is sent as a honeymoon present by one of the sons of the man in the White House and can travel on an A-1 priority. And instead of having an example made as the old Romans did of their sons, he [Elliott] is coddled with a brigadier generalship."

The dog was shipped from Washington, D. C., to Hollywood, Cal., as a gift from Elliott to his bride, Actress Faye Emerson. Subsequently three service men on furlough complained they were bumped off the plane and the dog was carried thru to its destination.

TITLE BUYING JUST A RACKET, BRITON CHARGES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 5 [Monday]. — Under a four column headline which asked, "What Is the Sense in So Many Titles?" this morning's Daily Mirror printed the following blast at titles from one of its readers:

"It's about time we stopped this racket of titles and hereditary peerages which are doled out every year in the honors list. Everybody knows that for one title deserved, 10 are 'bought.' The money goes to party funds, to charities, and after a few years of 'good works' the name of Mr. X appears in the honors list as Baron X of Muckheap. And, what's worse, his son and descendants will inherit the title—without even having benefited a hospital or a home for stray dogs.

"Why not scrap them all and put in their place just one honor which would really mean something and which would be given only for real merit?"

COUNCIL OF AFL KEEPS UP FIGHT ON LABOR DRAFT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Miami, Fla., Feb. 4.—The 15 man executive council which guides the policies of the American Federation of Labor between conventions will open its midwinter meeting here tomorrow.

During the meeting the board is expected to reiterate its opposition to the May "work or jail" bill, which was passed last week by the house of representatives.

President William Green of the AFL tonight reissued a copy of a letter sent to congress Jan. 29 condemning the May bill. The letter said "the measure is highly objectionable to working men and women represented by the AFL, all of whom cherish as a common heritage the principles of freedom, liberty, and democracy."

A major problem facing the executive board is the proposed reaffiliation of John L. Lewis and his United Mine Workers' union with the AFL.

CHANGE IN U. S. WAR FINANCING PLAN FORECAST

New York, Feb. 4 [Special].—A change in government financing policy barring banks from buying future issues of 2 or 2½ per cent treasury bonds was predicted today in financial circles. Instead, banks would be called upon to buy more short term, low interest securities and higher coupon issues would be longer term than previously and sold only to individuals. The change, if made, probably would be in securities to be offered in the seventh war loan drive, expected in May or June, it was said. In recent drives banks have been prevented from buying some higher coupon issues during the early part of the drive, when emphasis was placed on sales to individuals.

Last week's increased market activity in government bonds was attributed by some brokers to bank purchasing of treasury 2s sold in the sixth war loan, due 1952-'54, in the belief that such issues may be unavailable to banks in the future. The obligations sold nearly 1½ points above par. Banks were reported shifting their treasury bill and certificate holdings to the federal reserve banks.

National Steel Earnings Cut by WLB Pay Ruling

National Steel corporation, in a preliminary report, yesterday said its net income for 1944, after retroactive and vacation pay of 2 million dollars estimated due under a war labor board directive, was $10,751,369, equal to $4.87 a capital share, compared with $11,698,362, or $5.30 a share, in 1943.

INTERNATIONAL T. AND T.

International Telephone and Telegraph corporation stock recently was active at the highest prices since 1931. Please summarize recent developments.—P. L.

War time developments have not been as difficult for International Telephone and Telegraph as was expected in 1940, when the stock sold below $2 a share compared with a recent quotation of $23. It was learned after the liberation of Paris, Bucharest, and Antwerp that the manufacturing plants of its affiliates in those cities were undamaged.

Meanwhile, improved economic conditions in Spain and Latin America, where I. T. & T. subsidiaries have extensive properties, have had favorable effects on their operations. A Madrid dispatch last Jan. 3 reported that the Spanish government had transferred to I. T. & T. 5 million dollars from the earnings of the Spanish telephone company, subsidiary. Negotiations are under way for the sale of the American company's interest in that subsidiary to the Spanish government.

Gross profits of manufacturing subsidiaries, which slumped after 1939, are again increasing, probably as a result of increased manufacturing in the United States, thru the Federal Telephone and Radio corporation.

In the first nine months of 1944, consolidated net income from all sources was equal to 97 cents a share on the parent company's stock, compared with 51 cents a year earlier.

REJECT WORLD MONEY SCHEME, A. B. A. URGES

Qualified Approval Accorded Bank.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Congress was asked yesterday by the American Bankers' association to reject the Roosevelt administration's plan for participation in the proposed 8 billion 800 million dollar international monetary fund.

In a special report, copies of which were sent to members of congress and Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, the association described the fund as a dangerously inflationary scheme that would subject the resources of the United States to endless drain.

The association accorded qualified indorsement to the fund's Bretton Woods twin, the 10 billion dollar international bank. It suggested that the bank could become a useful mechanism for world financial collaboration if congress imposed adequate safeguards in approving this country's participation.

6 Billion Commitment at Start!

The report was made public as administration leaders prepared to submit to congress legislation for American entry into both proposed international agencies. This legislation calls for initial commitments by the United States of nearly 6 billion dollars.

The association warned that the initial contribution of 2¾ billion dollars proposed for the United States to the monetary fund would be only a starter.

When the dollars contributed to the fund are exhausted, the report said, the United States would be faced with new and more pressing demands. Failure to meet future demands would expose the United States to the charge of responsibility for the breakdown of world currency stability, it warned. Furthermore, there was no genuine promise that the fund could bring about monetary stability, it was asserted.

Makes Sharp Distinction.

The report made a sharp distinction between the financial principles embodied in proposals for the monetary fund and for the proposed world bank. It said the fund would depart from all sound principles of credit. The following excerpts were highlights of this section of the report:

"There is danger of providing too much money as well as providing too little. Too much money tends to encourage unsound and political borrowing. Such spending is inflationary in tendency, in that it creates large amounts of new spending power."

"The outside world as a whole already has more gold and dollar exchange than ever before, partly as a result of our huge overseas expenditures for military forces and for materials. . . . In the three years the treasury has been considering plans for an international monetary fund, the outside world's holdings of gold have increased something like 7 billion dollars."

"No Safeguard Against Misuse."

"The fund has no definite or effective provision to safeguard it against misuse. The fund is set up on the principle of a pool from which each member has the right to draw."

"As opposed to the usual lending practice, which places responsibility for making out a case for credit upon the borrower, the fund goes on the theory that the borrower is entitled to credit unless the lender can make out a case to the contrary. Under the Bretton Woods plan the lender is an institution in which the United States would have only a minority vote as compared with actual and potential borrowers."

"The question is not just one of protecting our initial investment, but of getting started on a policy of making doubtful loans. That policy would subject us to an endless drain on our resources. It would be of little lasting benefit to the borrowers, and we should be running the risk of repeating the disastrous policies of the '20s and '30s when we lent too freely and then stopped altogether."

Faults of Plan Summarized.

"The committees believe that the monetary fund as drafted is unsound and would increase the already grave danger of inflation; would delay fundamental economic adjustments, and would fail to protect the principles and interests of the United States and its citizens."

With an obvious reference to Russia the report said some countries would be represented on the managing board of the fund which "do not have the same understanding and appreciation of private enterprise that we do."

The operations of such an agency, it asserted, could be conducted in such manner as to "encourage or to hamper the spread of the benefits of private enterprise."

Little is known of what future steps Great Britain may take to meet her admittedly serious economic problems, the A. B. A. warned. It said Britain's course would be a vital factor in any program for world financial stabilization.

Plan for Britain Put First.

"Much of her substance has been drained off in this war," said the report. "An essential step in world recovery is a plan for Britain. We ought to know more about that before making large commitments."

The discussion of the fund concluded with a warning that the resources of the United States were not unlimited and that the American taxpayer already was carrying a heavy load.

"Economic stability in the United States is necessary to world stability," said the report, "and we can maintain stability here only as we resist the inflationary pressures which arise from loose fiscal policies and as we avoid taxes which stifle enterprise."

Turning to the proposed international bank, the report suggested that the plan agreed to at Bretton Woods could be modified to meet foreseeable international financial needs.

Would Broaden Purposes.

The bank's purposes could be broadened to include some of the functions proposed for the fund, the A. B. A. said. It recommended, for example, that the bank be empowered to make loans to individual countries to aid in stabilization of currencies.

However, it also recommended that certain safeguards be enacted by congress. One would be a provision that the American governor and director of the bank be appointed by the President with the advice and consent of the senate and that they be men of tested experience.

Under the plan approved at Bretton Woods and approved by the report the international bank would extend loans up to the limit of its capital of 10 billion dollars for productive purposes. The loans would be guaranteed jointly by member countries in the ratio of their stock subscriptions. The subscription quota of the United States would be 3 billion 175 million dollars.

Principles Held Satisfactory.

The bank "embodies satisfactory principles and procedures and if we assume good management, the institution should be able to operate soundly and effectively," the report said.

It also recommended increasing the capital of the existing Export-Import bank, a strictly American agency, from 700 million dollars to 2 billion dollars to "provide means for meeting promptly deserving credit needs prior to the setting up of the international bank."

This step also would enable the United States to make loans in which it had a special interest and which could be handled more effectively by a national institution than by an international agency.

Chicagoans on Committees.

The report was made public by W. Randolph Burgess, president of the bankers association and vice chairman of the National City Bank of New York. The committees which collaborated in preparing the report began their study of the Bretton Woods plans last September, seven weeks after the conference was held.

The Association of Reserve City Bankers and the Bankers Association for Foreign Trade participated in the study and joined the A. B. A. in its recommendations.

Chicago bankers who participated in the work of the committees were James R. Leavell, president of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company, and Frank C. Rathje, A. B. A. vice president and president of the Chicago City Bank and Trust company.

BRITISH COOL TO U. S. SUGGESTION TO ALTER BRETTON WOODS PLAN

BY JOSEPH CERUTTI.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 4.—The new world monetary proposals by the American Bankers association as an alternative to the Bretton Woods scheme today aroused an immediate unfavorable reaction in British financial circles.

Altho the short cabled summaries received so far admittedly were incomplete, financial writers lost no time in denouncing the A. B. A. report as an attempt to force a return to the gold standard. Market observers reportedly were convinced American bankers sought to induce the world to agree to rigid exchange rates and removal of exchange restrictions and trade barriers in return for dollar loans.

"If this is so, the new proposals of course would be totally inacceptable to this country," commented the Financial News.

The American bankers' report is taken to indicate the Bretton Woods plan was likely to meet powerful opposition when congressional sanction is sought. Altho apparently preferred to the American bankers' views, the Bretton Woods proposals also continue to encounter substantial British opposition despite repeated official assurances that no return to the gold standard would be involved.

War Demand Puts Chemical Output at Peak

Chemical production reached an all-time high last year, establishing national and world records, Harry L. Derby, president of the Manufacturing Chemists' association, said in the American Chemical society publication, Chemical and Engineering News. Output was estimated at nearly three times that of 1939, when production of chemicals in their strict sense was slightly less than 800 million dollars.

"This accelerated production for war has meant a gigantic expansion of plant and facilities, some of which did not reach completion even in 1944," he said. "Late figures indicate that expenditures for war production facilities, including explosives, chemicals for explosives, chemical intermediates for rubber, and chemicals for other war uses, approximate the 3 billion dollar mark."

Rocket Program Added.

Military demands for smokeless powder, high explosives, and the vitally important super-explosives have been on a scale heretofore undreamed of, because of the unprecedented expenditure of shells and bombs on the two fronts, he explained. To this should be added the rocket program of more recent

Approximately 1,200 chemicals are required in the building of a warship and about 600 chemicals in the production of a plane, he said. A bomber requires about 2.5 tons of alkali in its fabrication, and one type of bomber takes more than a ton of neoprene. Safety flameproof insulation for cable, using vinyl rosins, saves weight and increases safety for planes and battleships.

Derby said the 700 million dollar synthetic rubber program is one of the largest of the chemical consumers, and is expected to result in an output of nearly 800,000 tons of synthetic rubber for 1944, including Buna-S, Butyl, neoprene, and Buna-N.

Smoke Screen Use Large.

Among the war gases, the outstanding development has been for smokes, important for screening ships, troops, and active land areas. The so-called F. S. smoke, a mixture of chlorosulfonic and sulfur trioxide, is one of the large items. Phosphorus, which began its military career as an incendiary, has become most important for the production of smoke.

"The increased tempo of the war in the Pacific during 1944 placed special emphasis on chemical achievements in supplying war requirements for waterproof, flameproof, and mildewproof materials, for tentage and wearing apparel, and also for artificial leathers and other coated fabrics."

War demands for drugs and medicinal chemicals have been reflected in substantially expanded programs, first in synthetic drugs, such as atabrine to replace quinine as an anti-malarial, he said. Vitamins have reached a scale of production which annually requires from 50 to 75 million pounds of chemicals for their synthesis. Penicillin output has increased from 425 million units in June, 1943, to an estimated 1944 output of 1 trillion 500 million units.

STATE TO QUIZ MRS. REINECKE ON ICKES TODAY

Source of Misinformation to Tax Board Sought.

Mrs. Mabel Reinecke, member of the board of election commissioners, will be asked by assistants of State's Atty. Tuohy today about the source of misinformation on which the board of tax appeals granted Honest Harold Ickes, secretary of the interior, a reduction of tax valuation on the five story building he owns at 231-233 S. State st.

Acting for Ickes, whose realty interests had been handled in part, she said, by her late husband, Mrs. Reinecke told the appeals board the building was only three stories and the rental was $2,000 a month. Assessor Clark, whose protest started the prosecutor's inquiry, estimated the income at $61,000 a year.

Has No Doubt of Fraud.

Tuohy said he could not determine what action may be taken against Ickes until after his assistants assigned to the investigation, Jacob Shamberg and Gordon Nash, had talked with Mrs. Reinecke today. What has come to light thus far, however, caused him to say:

"I believe there is no doubt that there was constructive fraud."

The prosecutor said it may be found that a criminal offense was committed. Evidence may support a charge of fraud because Ickes benefitted by a reduction of $4,274 in his tax bill as a result of the lowered valuation.

Not Under Oath.

Altho Ickes appeared before the board of appeals, he was not under oath, Tuohy pointed out. The main point, he said, was how Mrs. Reinecke was supplied the figures she passed on to the board.

Mrs. Reinecke said yesterday she had no doubt that she could explain satisfactorily to Shamberg and Nash.

"I don't feel that it is proper to make a statement before I talk with them," she said, "but I have no fear that they will see anything unusual in the way this matter was handled."

Coincides with Visit.

Mrs. Reinecke made the appointment to see Tuohy's assistants at 11 a. m. today after she canceled two arrangements for press conferences Saturday, when she returned from a visit to her ranch in Montana. Her decision against talking for publication then coincided with a visit to her office by John Ryckman, department of the interior press agent.

Hospital Service Plan Group to Meet Today

John R. Mannix, director of Chicago's Blue Cross plan for hospital care, will be chairman of the committee on national development of the Hospital Service Plan commission which will meet in Hotel Continental today and tomorrow. The commission is the national coördinating body for Blue Cross hospital service plans in 43 states.

TROUBLE FEARED IN 10TH WARD'S ELECTION TODAY

Threats of violence in the 10th ward at its aldermanic election today caused the board of election commissioners yesterday to ask that 14 police squads be sent into the ward. Four candidates are seeking the council post and two of them have split the Democrats in the ward into factions.

Councilmen to fill vacancies caused by deaths will be elected today in the 6th, 10th, and 26th wards. There is only one candidate, a Democrat, in the 26th, but in the two others there are contests so close that party workers engaged yesterday in a last minute drive for votes.

While the statutes make the council a nonpartisan body, candidates are readily identifiable as to politics and, except for avowed independents, have the backing of party organizations. If more than one aspirant is of the same party, a split into factions results within the ward.

Two Democrats in Race.

That has happened in the 10th, on the far south side, where two Democrats seek the post. Emil V. Pacini, a World War I. veteran and former auto racer, has the backing of Rep. William A. Rowan, who also is ward committeeman. Pacini was Rowan's secretary when he was alderman and during his absence in Washington, Pacini has handled ward affairs for him. The congressman returned to Chicago to give Pacini a hand in the election.

Max A. Pieczynski, nephew of the late alderman, has the support of the Democratic Poles headed by County Treasurer Schlaeger. Frank Sowa, regarded as independent, is credited with Polish support in the precincts near his home, in the south end of the ward.

The division between Democrats in the 10th has provided a bright opportunity for the Republican sponsored candidate, Alfred O'Connor, a lawyer, said Dr. Harry E. L. Timm, ward committeeman. Dr. Timm said the Republican county central committee had given him a staff of workers and that every voter on the polling lists would be called on.

Aided by G. O. P. Leaders.

Republican organization help also was given George C. Johnson in the 6th ward yesterday. Oliver H. Bovik, committeeman, said Johnson stands high with independent voters, but he said also that bad weather today would affect the turnout at the polls. Johnson, a son-in-law of the late Ald. Patrick Sheridan Smith, is an employe of the election board.

The sole candidate in the 26th is Mathew W. Bieszcat, a Democratic organization worker who was secretary to the late Ald. A. J. Sobota.

ACCIDENT LEADS TO DEATH.

Julius Sylvester, 63, an inmate of the Chicago State hospital [Dunning] since 1931, died there yesterday of pneumonia which developed after he had been burned in an accident in the institution's heating plant, where he was working.

PLAN TO EMPLOY MORE TEACHERS IS UP TO BOARD

The Chicago board of education expects on Wednesday to supply from 50 to 100 new teachers to meet an emergency which has resulted in a daily average of 200 teacherless classrooms in the city's elementary schools, it was announced yesterday. The new supply of teachers will come thru temporary relaxation of the requirement that all city school teachers be graduates of Chicago Teachers' college.

The plan was worked out last week by officials of the board and representatives of teachers' unions and associations. Formal approval is expected at the board meeting Wednesday. Sponsors of the plan have promised to have ready a list of 50 to 100 instructors qualified except for lack of Chicago Teachers' college certificates.

Teachers' union and association representatives refused to waive the teachers' college requirement on a permanent basis, it was learned, but the emergency plan to which they agreed calls for establishment of a day-to-day substitute teacher list composed of qualified persons who are not Teachers' college graduates.

These persons will be assigned at first to classrooms where teachers are absent on illness leave. When their number increases, they may be called in to fill absences created by sabbatical, maternity, and special military leaves.

Board officials say that in a little more than a year a cumulative list of 1,400 teacher vacancies has been created by wartime conditions. To relieve this, the board appointed 400 regular teachers from its lists of eligibles, and appointed 1,200 temporary teachers, but many of these had gone into war work, seeking higher pay.
